Police Comb Island For Fugitive Pair

Police forces of the whole lower Island are engaged in an intensive search for two escaped inmates of the Wilkinson Road Mental Home this morning.

Saanich police were notified that the men had escaped about 6 p.m. Friday, and all other Island police forces were alerted at once.

Mental Home authorities refused to divulge how the men made their escape.

Descriptions of the two men follows:

Raoul J. Rose, 26, five feet six inches tall, good build, black hair and brown eyes. Dressed in grey gabardine trousers, light windbreaker and khaki shirt.

Oscar Philapraunt, 68, weight 160 pounds, grey hair. The only description of his clothing available is that he is wearing a khaki shirt and heavy black boots.

Police ask that anyone seeing these men notify any Greater Victoria police station immediately.

Rose is considered dangerous.

Red Choice of Russia As Neutral Rejected

MUNSAN, Korea, Feb. 16 (Saturday) (AP).—Allied staff officers today rejected Communist nomination of Russia as a neutral nation to participate in behind-the-lines inspection after a Korean armistice.

An allied staff officer told newspaper men after the meeting on truce supervision that it should be "obvious" why Russia was not acceptable.

He said the Red choices of Poland and Czechoslovakia were acceptable.

The staff officer meeting followed a plenary session in which the top Red negotiators submitted a revised proposal on recommendations to the belligerent governments.

"KOREA, ETC."

The new Red draft said a "higher level" political conference should be held within three months to discuss the withdrawal of foreign troops and the "peaceful settlement of the Korean question, etc."—It came in a brief 15-minute session.

The added "etc." appeared to be the joker. Presumably the Reds would try to expand it to include all outstanding Asian problems. The Allies rejected the first Red proposal on recommendations to the governments concerned because it was too all-inclusive.

Esquimalt Naval Arsenal To Move to Rocky Point

The naval arsenal at Esquimalt is to be moved to Rocky Point near William Head where the government recently purchased a large tract of land.

A report from The Colonist's Ottawa correspondent said last night that plans for the necessary building have not yet been prepared and indications are that the cost of the project will run into millions of dollars.

The quarantine station at William Head will be taken over by naval headquarters from the department of national health and welfare sometime this summer.

It is considered that facilities at Rocky Point will be in readiness to effect the transfer early next year.

The move to shift the naval dump more than 20 miles from Victoria has been on the secret files of the department of national defense for some time.

No reason for the move was given and naval officials here refuse to discuss their plans.

Whether or not the quarantine station will be used as an integral part in connection with the magazine to be established at Rocky Point has not been definitely decided as yet.

FARMS OPTIONED

Last year a local real estate agent, who has handled other government jobs, picked up options on farms and other small holdings in the Rocky Point area. At the same time some farmers in the district started auctioning off their stock and equipment and preparing to move.

It is understood that this property has now been purchased by the government. Water deep enough to handle sea-going ships surrounds Rocky Point and William Head. A large tract of flat land a feasible site for an airfield—was also included in the government purchase.

It is also understood the government has purchased more property in the Sooke area and additional developments are planned for Colwood.

Disposition of the quarantine station has not yet been disclosed and officials say they are "in the dark" over any proposed move.

Collision Kills Mainland Girl

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., Feb. 15 (CP)—An eight-year-old girl was killed today and her father and 10-year-old girl friend were seriously injured in a grinding tram-truck collision.

Loreda Sims was dead on arrival at Royal Columbian Hospital here. Injured were Lloyd Sims, 40, driver of the truck, and Lorraine Scroggie. Sims suffered a broken arm and leg while the girl has scalp wounds and other multiple injuries.

No one on the tram was injured.

Lonely Vigil Kept By Dowager Queen

LONDON, Feb. 15 (INS)—The world's loneliest Queen said farewell to her son, King George VI, with a slow wave of her hand from a window of Marlborough House today as the funeral procession passed by.

Because of her age, Dowager Queen Mother Mary was unable to join the cortege that wound in measured pace from Westminster Hall to Paddington Station, or attend the funeral services at Windsor Castle. She is 84.

Britain's silver-haired "Grand Old Lady," who saw two other sons and a husband buried in the years past, resigned herself to staying at home while the rest of the Royal family attended the funeral.

Her new ordeal recalled the deaths of her 13-year-old son, Prince John, in 1919, her husband, King George V, in 1936, and another son, the Duke of Kent, in a plane crash in 1942.

USED BINOCULARS

The stately old woman, wearing a black dress and light shawl over her shoulders watched the slow-moving procession through a pair of binoculars from a second-floor window. Later she turned on her radio for a description of the funeral services at Windsor.

"The Queen remained dry-eyed as she watched from a chair, but a household official said she was tremendously sad."

As the coffin came into view, she stood erect, slowly. As it passed, she raised her hand in farewell.

But the Dowager Queen remained at the window, to see her mourning family.

The four royal dukes, Gloucester, Windsor, Kent and Edinburgh, came abreast of her vantage point and looked up at the almost tragic-looking figure in the window.

Windsor, Gloucester and Edinburgh saluted smartly. The 16-year-old Duke of Kent lifted his silk top-hat slightly in her direction. Windsor seemed to show more emotion than the others.

BOWED THEIR HEADS

Queen Elizabeth II, and the royal ladies riding with her in the lead horse-drawn coach all glanced toward the window and bowed their heads toward the Dowager Queen.

An official at Marlborough House said later the Dowager Queen withstood the day's ordeal with her usual regal fortitude.

Another spokesman said the Dowager Queen ordinarily dislikes telephones and radios, but her radio "was a blessed aid today."

He said the Queen started listening to the funeral broadcasts in her drawing room as soon as the B.B.C. opened its special service.

Defense Motion Changes Order Of Bookie Trial

VANCOUVER, Feb. 15 (CP)—Next group of witnesses to be called at the big bookmaking-conspiracy trial here will not likely be announced until sometime tomorrow.

Crown prosecutor Gordon Scott said tonight he is making substantial changes in his order of witnesses in view of rulings handed down at Thursday's session.

He was referring to the successful defense attempt to block evidence not given at the police court preliminary hearing of the case against the 26 accused.

George VI Goes to Last Rest Beside Nine Other British Kings

By KINGSBURY SMITH

WINDSOR, Eng., Feb. 15 (INS)—The body of "George the Good" was lowered solemnly into the vault of his illustrious ancestors today, while overhead a young Queen sprinkled a symbolic handful of earth, and the brother who gave him the throne openly grieved.

Thus, in eternal immobility in a niche not far from that of Henry VIII, ended the vivid funeral procession of George VI, a gentle man who seemed to have been born chiefly to help hold Britain and her peoples together during 15 of the Empire's most tempestuous years.

Sun Filters In

The sun which had broken the gloom of a wintry day filtered through the stained glass of St. George's Chapel, hard by the ancient turrets of Windsor Castle, to illuminate this last sad ceremony.

". . . Ashes to ashes . . . dust to dust," intoned the voice of the Archbishop of Canterbury, as he prayed down into the deepening gloom of the vault into which the simple oaken casket had been lowered.

The pale young Queen, small but wondrous link in the endless chain of British Royal succession, hesitated as the archbishop paused at that funereal passage of his reading.

The primate nodded to Elizabeth II to repeat what she had done previously, through the error of an aide, spread a bit of earth on the last resting place of her father.

With sad composure she did so, and stepped back as the deep-voiced choir filled the ancient place of worship with the hymn, "I Heard a Voice From Heaven."

Through the whole incomparable pageantry of noble death the man who had been king, but had put aside that destiny to marry an American woman, stood as if more stricken than at any time since he had handed to this dead King the punishing burdens of office.

Joins Widowed Queen

The Duke of Windsor was plainly touched. His eyes stared off across the heads of Queen Mother Elizabeth and other silent but grievously affected mourners.

And when the short poignant service was done, and the great chapel doors were swung open to reveal the wreath-laden lawn before it, the man who had been Edward VIII moved quickly to the side of widowed Queen Mother Elizabeth.

It is possible that they had not spoken since the momentous events of 1936 which had thrust George VI and Elizabeth to the throne.

But now Windsor, as dashing as of old in the uniform of British admiral, took the Queen Mother's hands in his, bowed over them and kissed them. He stepped back, bowed again, and joined those who silently left the last resting place of a beloved world figure.

There was other symbolic ceremony. The Queen Mother, who had seemed in a tearless daze throughout the final sonnore pomp of the burial, went quickly to her daughter-Queen, kissed her on both cheeks, kissed her hand—then curtsied.

England and her Dominions, her Commonwealths and her millions, paused in respectful silence for two minutes, the world around at the climax of the burial ceremony. Its traffic, from Rolls Royce to ox-cart, stopped. A motorist was nearly mobbed in Fleet Street, for ignoring the wailing "stop" sirens. Britain's multi-tongue was stilled.

But then, with traditional fortitude and even optimism, it echoed the words spoken in St. George's Chapel early in the burial service by Sir George Bellew, Garter King of Arms.

Sir George, after mournfully intoning the titles of the dead monarch, concluded:

"Humbly beseeching Almighty God bless our Sovereign Lady Elizabeth the Second. Long live the Queen!"

The events in St. George's Chapel, where now rest the remains of ten British kings, were but a climax piled on countless others that preceded during the day.

The funeral procession of George VI was a winding, colorful shroud-splashed river which flowed for three miles through banks made of a million mourners strung from Westminster Hall to Paddington Station.

When that sad river had run half its course, and the ancient gun-carriage which carried the body of "George the Good" was abreast Marlborough House, a bravely erect and venerable woman appeared at a window to wave a last wistful farewell to a beloved son.

She was dowager Queen Mother Mary, 84, a picture of queenliness. She has lived to see buried her husband King George V, has seen her Edward leave her and his mission in life, and now she looked on as another son-king went to rest.

Behind the gun-carriage, drawn by 150 sailors, as has been the custom since the horses which pulled the body of Queen Victoria on the same vehicle had reared and fallen, came the horse-drawn carriage carrying Queen Elizabeth II, Queen Mother Elizabeth, and Princess Margaret Rose.

The women were heavily veiled. Each turned her face to look up at the ancient woman in the window of Marlborough House as if they were looking up at a symbol of Royal succession and regal perseverance.

Dukes March Abreast

Then came the marching dukes, their shoes scraping rhythmically along avenues which had been sanded against the night's rain and hints of snow.

They marched abreast Windsor in his admiral's uniform and gold-gripped sword, the heavy-set Gloucester in general's garb, the pale and handsome Edinburgh, Consort, in the navy uniform he had worn until very recently, and the 16-year-old Duke of Kent, in top hat.

Windsor turned to the window above the heads of packed mourners and briskly saluted his mother. The others in uniform followed suit. The young Duke of Kent tipped his hat.

And the procession moved on in its seemly pace, dictated by the mournful wail of bagpipes, the dirges of the massed bands that brought up the rear, and the solemn tolling of Big Ben.

Elsewhere, as the river funeral flowed, it passed a child, his face pressed against a window of St. James' Palace. It was a face that was excited by the processional and by the great crowds that pressed around.

Three-year-old Prince Charles, heir to the throne, was perhaps without his knowledge seeing the last of the grandfather whose last pain-wracked days of life were enlivened by the happy youngster.

World Pays Homage

A whole world paid homage to George VI as the coffin, draped in his standard and supporting his crown and sword, moved to the station where it would be borne to Windsor and the final resting place.

Seven kings and three crown princes were part of the procession. Two immortal military figures with whom the dead King had often conferred during World War II—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and British Field-Marshal Sir Bernard Law Montgomery—were in the march.

A sombrely-dressed Secretary of State Dean Acheson represented President Truman.

It was a naval funeral, in respect to a monarch who had fought valiantly at Jutland as a young prince-officer. A solemn bos'n piped the coffin aboard the gun-carriage as it was brought from the catafalque in Westminster Hall.

And at Windsor, as the oaken box was tenderly carried toward the doors of crowded St. George's, the bos'n piped again, this time the shrill bleat reserved for announcing that an admiral is going ashore.

The train which bore the body of George VI to Windsor was pulled by a locomotive swathed in deep purple shrouds, and bearing his coat of arms. Its cars held the immediate family and closest associates of the dead Monarch. Ahead of the funeral train sped a special train carrying the nobility, diplomatic and military figures of Europe.

In St. George's, an exquisite chapel built on land where Roman legionaries marched in clanking armor, many had waited as long as three hours in heavy silence.

Precedence Forgotten

But at last, for those who waited, came the approaching sound of dirges and the scraping of hooves on the ancient approaches. As the coffin was carried in on the stout shoulders of Grenadier Guards, the choir burst forth with the first hymn of the ceremony.

The two Elizabeths followed the coffin, side by side. Forgotten in their mutual grief was the precedence which ordered Elizabeth II to walk alone, as sovereign. I stood within touching distance of them, and could see how sad were their faces beneath their heavy veils. They whispered inaudibly as they passed to their places.

The enormous pallbearers placed the coffin on a purple-covered bier at the foot of the altar steps. The crown was lifted from the standard-draped casket and the penetrating sunlight fired its jewels as it was carried to a small dais to the left of the altar.

The Duke of Windsor, red-eyed from a burst of tears that had broken his anguished restraint on the train trip to the final resting place, stared fixedly at the choir loft. As the last of the official mourners entered, yeomen in colorful garb took their positions and closed the great doors. The chapel's scores of tiny yellow electric lights manifested their glow amidst the rainbow hues of the sun being strained through chapel windows.

Mask of Sorrow

Winston Churchill, who has served two King Georges, two King Edwards, and fought for Victoria, stood broodingly to one side, his familiar face a mask of sorrow.

The Elizabeths stood motionlessly behind the coffin as the opening hymn trailed away into silence, and then the firm voice of the Bishop of Winchester, the Rt. Rev. Mervyn George Haigh, filled the chapel.

He read a lesson from Revelations.

". . . There shall be no death," he called, and the head of the young Queen bowed.

Again the choir sounded. It was an Easter hymn dating from the 15th century, "The Strife Is Over, the Battle Is Done."

And so it went: Song, prayer, song, prayer. And in time the archbishop could say his mournful final words, the young Queen could let the symbolic dirt slip through her fingers and "George the Good" was one with bygone Windsors.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Seeing an early rehearsal of a play is something like happening upon Jane Russell in her nightgown. It's less formal, but more interesting.

My experience along these lines is of course limited to seeing plays in rehearsal. That, too, gives you something to think about.

The other night I dropped in to a rehearsal of the Victoria College production of Kaufman and Hart's "You Can't Take It With You," which is being staged here Feb. 28 and 29 and March 1.

Ian Thorne, the director, is a short, slight young man who walks with a cane. In private life he resembles an intelligent, well-mannered elf. He approaches people with some diffidence, and the volume of his English voice is always turned well down.

But when the rehearsal starts, he undergoes a transformation. He sheds the mild manner and puts on authority quicker than a workman dons overalls. Thorne is obviously in charge. When he speaks out loud and clear, his young players jump to it — but cheerfully.

* * *

I sat near the front of the college auditorium, in the row behind Mrs. Thorne, who was holding their three-month-old daughter. The child slept peacefully while the actors clattered and stormed around. "She's going to be a real trouper," Mrs. Thorne whispered.

"You Can't Take It With You" must be a director's nightmare. It requires some 20 actors to carry on, simultaneously, such diverse activities as playing the xylophone, tending pet snakes, operating a printing press, testing skyrockets, painting pictures, and ballet dancing.

As the playwrights put it, "This is a house where you do what you like, and no questions asked."

The family might have carried on forever in this entertaining way had it not been for a love affair between one pretty daughter (the sole strictly sane person among them), and the clean-cut son of a Wall Street stuffed shirt; a slight misunderstanding between grandpa and the income tax people; and a hassle with the Justice Department about making fireworks in the basement and inciting sedition.

Things get tied in an appalling knot, as you can imagine, but Grandpa, that odd, terse philosopher, untangles them. See for yourself.

* * *

The play calls for enough properties to fill a large moving van, but at the rehearsal imagination had to supply most of them. Some of the players were costumed, some in mufti. This is one of the things which contributes to the charm of a rehearsal, for the onlooker. And there is a pleasant blend of edgy tension and mirth. When someone fluffs a line or an action, the spell of make-believe snaps like a bubble. People laugh.

Then the director bobs up like a friendly lion. "That's a wrong entrance . . . you're holding that rocket below the table where they can't see it . . . do it this way." "You'll have to take some ballet lessons, I'm afraid . . . You look like a sort of flamingo bouncing across the stage." "Roll those R's, get that Continental feeling. 'I've had a letter from my friend in R-r-Rosha' . . . like that."

So they rub it out and do it again — a gang of young people in earnest, but having fun. The onlooker sees blemishes being removed, and begins to imagine the future performance, as polished and complete as it can be made.

Ian tells them to project their voices. "Remember that imaginary small boy in the back row — get it across to him." Then he strolls over to a real small girl in the front row — his daughter, who has slept through the whole thing.

Centuries-Old Plaint Intoned At St. Andrew's Mass for King

A plaint that was old when Windsor Castle, last resting place of King George VI, was first built, sounded yesterday as red-vestured priests celebrated the Most Holy Sacrifice of the Mass in honor of the Holy Ghost, and asked God's blessing on the bereaved Royal family.

The plaint: "Eternal rest grant unto him, O Lord, and let perpetual light shine upon him," is the centuries-old cry of the Roman Catholic Church.

There were prophets of gloom who declared the accession of the shy, frail young man of halting speech to the throne spelled the end of the monarchy," Rev. Lewis MacLellan said in his sermon.

"He was comparatively unknown; he had not been schooled for regal office.

"But, in the opinion of discerning observers, this unknown prince raised the status of monarchy as few kings ever did and endeared himself to his people to a degree not reached by most rulers of men.

LOW EBB

"At a time when the spiritual life of nations was at a low ebb," Father MacLellan said, "when the sanctuary lamps were being extinguished in many a country with a glorious Christian tradition, when domestic virtues were being considered old-fashioned, here was a King . . . moving among his people in their darkest hour, with his hand in the hand of God.

"It was his lot to lead his people during the most critical years of the nation's long history. And he led his people by enduring their sufferings, their privations, and the horrors that were visited on the beleagered land.

"This was the example he gave throughout his reign," Father MacLellan told a crowded St. Andrew's Cathedral. "This was the example in particular that he gave in his family life."

"We humbly thank God for the example that he gave to the Empire and the world."

Vancouverite Sets Sail From Trinidad

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Feb. 15 (Reuters) — Two Americans and a Briton left today as crew members aboard an 18-foot Canadian-owned sloop.

Describing their destination as "probably British Guiana" they departed on the vessel True, captained by owner Geoff Partington of Vancouver.

The crew members are Frank De Freitas of New York, Joe Gavitt of San Francisco, and Capt. D. Orsborne, fined here for arms smuggling last fall as he was making a round-the-world attempt in the ketch Argosy.

John Hoskins, Orsborne's former mate on the Argosy, was also on board as a crew member.

Orsborne's latest small-boat expedition came to an end here when authorities confiscated the Argosy.

He crossed the Atlantic in 1936 in a trawler with a crew of three and only a school atlas to guide them. In 1947 he failed in a bid to repeat the trip alone and was picked up after being three weeks adrift.

Esquimalt Cancels May Celebrations

The organization has been holding an annual two-day celebration for the last four years, donating proceeds to recreation for Esquimalt youth.

Labor Watches Reports Closely

British Columbia's labor forces, as this session rather than await an election.

It would be "reprehensible" to call an election before the reports have been dealt with said C.C.F. leader Harold Winch after the break between Liberals and Progressive Conservatives.

The T.L.C. unions, which constitutionally do not back one particular party, do maintain active interest in legislation affecting labor.

Apparently fighting to maintain some labor vote for his party is Attorney-General Gordon Wismer, who is reported to be asking a full-dress session.

Three reports, covering the Workmen's Compensation Act, the Industrial Conciliation and Arbitration Act and the Hospital Insurance Service, will draw the attention of organized labor.

Hundreds of other workers are expected to watch closely any action on the compensation act and hospital insurance.

Failure to deal with any of the [illegible] session beginning Tuesday, might swing the organized labor vote behind a party pressing for immediate action.

Canadian Congress of Labor and Trades and Labor Congress unions in the province last year raised 250,000 signatures petitioning for changes in hospital insurance.

The C.C.F. party, backed by the C.C.L., has indicated it will press for consideration of the reports

Day Made Memorable For City's School Children

Children of Victoria schools, some 12,500 of them, will remember the day of the King's funeral by the hymns they sang, the services they attended, the prayers they said and perhaps the tears they shed.

Thursday afternoon all schools in Greater Victoria held services marking the funeral of King George VI.

The services were suggested by the department of education, and the theme, as chosen by Rev. Moir A. J. Waters of First United Church in his address to Victoria High School students, was taken from one of the late King's Christmas broadcasts.

Barber Shop Boosts List Of U.N. Woes

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 (AP) — The United Nations' struggle for global harmony met another snag today—Tom Fucarino, occupation, barber; address, Third Avenue, New York, U.S.A.

Back in 1946, Tom registered the name of his barber shop with the county clerk as "United Nations Barber Shop."

It's in the east side area of the new U.N. headquarters.

But the U.N. has a rule that its title can't be used for commercial purposes.

One V. J. G. Stavridi of the U.N. knocked off a letter to Tom Fucarino, Third Avenue, New York, U.S.A.

He told Fucarino to stop using the name United Nations Barber Shop, but suggested suavely:

"Should you wish to use the name in a purely descriptive manner, as, for instance, 'the barber shop near the United Nations,' there would be no objection."

But Tom doesn't think much of the new name, and said today he's standing firm until someone proves he's breaking a law.

That's just it—there isn't any law.

Stavridi admitted sadly that there isn't much he can do beyond persuasion.

So, to Russia, Iran, Pakistan, Egypt and other headaches, the U.N. is adding Tom Fucarino, Third Avenue, New York, U.S.A.

P.C. Caucus To Be Held On Monday

Progressive Conservatives will hold their caucus Monday under Opposition Leader Herbert Anscomb.

The policy, however, for the legislative session opening Tuesday, probably won't be officially apparent until Premier Byron Johnson makes known government policy in the house.

It is known, however, that P.C.'s lean toward a short session, with only a supply budget to carry on the province's essential work. A new mandate from the people for a government is necessary, some have declared.

Meanwhile, C.C.F. leader Harold Winch has questioned whether Herbert Anscomb is opposition leader. The P.C. leader was reported to have been described by Mr. Winch as another who had "crossed the floor."

According to constitutional authority, Mr. Winch remains opposition leader until the session convenes, when Mr. Anscomb with a larger representation of members, succeeds him.

Two Injured As Vehicles Hit Head-On

Two persons were injured in a head-on car collision at Quadra and Glanford Thursday night, Saanich police reported yesterday.

In good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital is Donald A. Harwood, East Saanich Road, who was badly cut and bruised.

Harwood's car was demolished in the mishap. Wrecking crews were unable to tow the car from the accident—it had to be carried away.

Miss Martha E. Young, Old West Road, was treated in hospital and later sent home. She received knee injuries.

Stately Cortege Proceeds Through London

Funeral cortege of King George VI proceeds from Westminster Hall to Paddington Station, with the casket borne on a naval gun carriage, and preceded by a naval gun crew. The King's brothers, the Duke of Gloucester and the Duke of Windsor, follow the casket with the Duke of Edinburgh, Queen Elizabeth's consort, and the young Duke of Kent, nephew of the late King.—(INP Soundphoto.)

At the Passing Of a Beloved Monarch

By JOHN MASEFIELD
Poet Laureate

The Everlasting Wisdom has ordained
That this rare soul, his earthly service done,
Shall leave the peoples over whom he reigned
For other service at a higher throne,
Where life's rewarders sing at triumph won
In nobleness attempted and attained
Through years more terrible than any known.
What is a nation's love? No little thing:
A vast dumb tenderness beyond all price:
Surely a power of prayer upon a wing:
The living anguish of a hope to heal
Offered by all hearts here in sacrifice
To spirits bowed in sorrow for the King
That it may touch, to comfort or anneal,
May this devotion help them in their grief,
May the devotion kindle to resolve
To make this stricken country green with leaf
Glad with another hope to be again
A sun about which singing orbs revolve,
A kingdom grown so worthy of her chief
That millions yet unborn shall bless her reign.

Heads Bow, Nation's Tempo Slows

By The Canadian Press

Canada paid silent, solemn homage yesterday to the memory of its late beloved King George VI.

The gentle hush of a two-minute silence fell across the land as capital, city and hamlet held quiet memorial services for the Sovereign. He was buried a few hours earlier in St. George's Chapel at Windsor, England, burial place of British kings for centuries.

The day was one of general mourning throughout Canada.

Schools generally were closed. Banks were shut. Other business places were closed either for all or part of the day. Theatres remained closed in most places until evening.

The airways, too, quietened. The C.B.C., except for broadcasts of the funeral services in Britain and the memorial service in Canada, was silent. Private stations were not required to leave the air, but generally programmed only solemn music.

AT HALL OF FAME

Ottawa, the capital, led the nation in its last tribute to the King with a solemn ceremony in the grey-stoned Hall of Fame in the Parliament Buildings.

There, before a draped, purple velvet curtain at one end of the hall, leaders of state placed wreaths. Outside, before the buildings, a great crowd stood bareheaded as the two-minute silence was observed and cannon began firing 56 rounds in a salute to the departed monarch.

The Parliament Hill ceremony started with the tolling of the 1,100-pound Great Bell of the carillon high in the Peace Tower that rises above the parliament buildings. It tolled for 56 minutes—once each 30 seconds—to mark the 56 years of the King's life.

The crowds, estimated at 3,000 persons, gathered early to throng behind the lines of servicemen stationed before the main building of parliament.

Inside, a 100-man guard of honor, representative of the three armed services, lined the Hall of Fame. Diplomats, cabinet ministers, members of parliament and other officials stood silently in reserved areas along the hall.

MASSED BANDS

At 2:25 p.m. EST, massed bands stationed in a nearby committee room played Chopin's funeral march, "Abide With Me," "God Save the Queen" and "O Canada."

The halls quietened. The two-minute silence, marked by the firing of a single gun, began at 2:58 p.m. It ended at 3 p.m., with the first of the 56-gun salute.

High-ranking officials placed wreaths, five in all, before the velvet curtain which was flanked by officer representatives of the army, navy, air force and R.C.M.P. Each stood with head bowed, his rifle reversed.

Funeral Sidelights

WINDSOR, England, Feb. 15 (AP).—The British government's official floral tribute to the King today bore the words "For Gallantry."

The purple lettering was in the centre of a wreath fashioned of white lilac and white carnations in the shape of a George Cross.

Prime Minister Churchill's inscription on the wreath read:

"In loyal and affectionate memory of their august sovereign, King George Sixth, the Royal founder of the George Cross, with humble duty from Her Majesty's government."

BRUSSELS, Feb. 15 (AP).—Twenty-one-year-old King Baudouin arrived 15 minutes late today at the Church of England here where a memorial service was held for King George VI.

The king who declined to attend the London funeral and deputized his brother, Prince Albert, was in a lieutenant-general's uniform with a large black band around his left arm.

* * *

CAIRO, Feb. 15 (AP).—Prince Mohammed Aly, representing King Farouk, and Prime Minister Aly Maher Pasha attended a memorial service for King George VI at the cathedral of the Church of All Saints today.

A crowd of several hundred packed the cathedral, which was heavily guarded by police and Egyptian army detachments.

WINDSOR, England, Feb. 15 (AP).—Among the wreaths sent to Windsor for the King was one of white lilacs and violets inscribed in Braille. It was sent by the British Empire Society for the Blind.

Vancouver Citizens Mourn at Cenotaph

VANCOUVER, Feb. 15 (CP).—Fifteen thousand Vancouver citizens stood in a chill breeze around the cenotaph in Victory Square today to pay their last respects to King George VI.

Drums of a black-bereted army band played the "Dead March" as four sentinels—from the Navy, Army, R.C.A.F. and R.C.M.P.—marched to their stations around the stone column.

Only one person was on the grass plot around the base of the cenotaph—a little girl in a red suit who toddled away from her parents, who, with the rest of the throng, were held back by police ropes.

The ceremony lasted an hour. The thousands of military personnel and civilians sang, "Abide With Me." Wreaths were placed at the foot of the granite column. Lieutenant - Governor Clarence Wallace of British Columbia spoke, the wind carrying away most of his words.

"... A great King, a human, lovable King," he said.

He ended: "God Save the Queen."

The sun made splashes of color on the uniforms of a navy detachment and units from the Wrens, the Seaforth Highlanders, the R.C.A.F., the R.C.M.P., and C.W.A.C., the Legion of Frontiersmen, Imperial Veterans, Commissionaires.

Rifles came to the present as the "Last Post" sounded. The first echo from a 56-gun salute rolled over the crowd.

Climax Held Looming

Israel, Red Relations Worsening

TEL AVIV, Feb. 15 (INS).—The relationships between Israel and Iron Curtain countries are reportedly rapidly worsening.

Usually accurate reports reaching well-informed quarters in Tel Aviv today indicate the next weeks may bring a climax to already strained contacts between eastern world and democratic Israel.

A highlight is provided by the impending trial of former Czech communist leader Rudolf Slansky.

When the Prague attorney-general rises to indict the defendant he is expected to proclaim that Slansky and his alleged accomplices worked "on behalf of Zionist organizations ultimately connected with western intelligence services."

CASES PENDING

Many other cases of a similar nature are pending before political courts in other "people's democracies."

Radio stations broadcasting in the Yiddish language from Iron Curtain transmitters lately have intensified anti-Jewish propaganda. These broadcasts claim that "secret Zionist agents" are currently operating in Europe, on behalf of Israel and that Israel has been converted into a western base.

According to conservative but reliable estimates available, eight per cent of the suspects rounded up in Czechoslovakia recently are of the Jewish faith, including many ardent Zionists actively involved in Zionist activities before the Second World War.

SYMPTOMS PILE UP

Meanwhile, three eastern diplomats recently refused to return to their capitals from Israel.

Well-informed sources said that symptoms are gradually piling up that the eastern "people's democracies" are determined to build up scattered cases against individual Jewish Communist militants with the obvious aim of undermining whatever popularity Israel as a state may have won behind the Iron Curtain.

But seasoned observers feel these "staged" trials constitute but one more overt attempt by the Cominform countries to scare Israel against full alignment with the western democracies.

Steelmen Deny Union Charges

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 (AP).—Big steel snorted "poppycock and balderdash" today to C.I.O. president Philip Murray's claim that the industry is trying to provoke a bloody, country-wide steel strike.

Murray told a wage stabilization hearing: "I accuse the steel industry of deciding in advance not to engage in real collective bargaining . . ."

Recalling the bloody labor struggles of the 1930's, Murray said his 650,000 United Steelworkers (C.I.O.) are "fearful of the return of gunmen."

The C.I.O. steelworkers have threatened a Feb. 24 strike to back up demands for an 18½-cents-an-hour wage increase. They also are seeking 21 other items, including a guaranteed annual wage.

The steel industry has argued before the wage stabilization panel since Jan. 10 that it cannot meet these demands without boosting prices.

Iranian Leader Badly Wounded

TEHRAN, Feb. 15 (AP).—Hossein Fatemi, Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh's aide, was shot today by a fanatical Moslem youth.

Fatemi, 38, was taken to hospital, where physicians said chances of survival would not be known for several hours. The bullet punctured his intestines.

The young gunman fired at point-blank range as Fatemi addressed nationalist followers at a cemetery near Tehran. Authorities identified the assailant as a member of the Moslem terrorist organization, Fedayan Islam, which already boasts the assassination of one Iranian prime minister during the last year.

The authorities said an inscription pasted on the youth's gun said: "We demand freedom for Navab Safavi," a Fedayan Islam leader now in prison.

The gunman was seized by the angry crowd.

Worker Dies Of Injuries

VANCOUVER, Feb. 15 (CP).—Metro Klym, 25-year-old mill worker flown here Thursday from Port Mellon after a mill accident, died in hospital tonight.

Klym was crushed between rollers at the mill at Port Mellon, 30 air miles from here.

Bill Waddington, B.C. Airlines pilot, took only 42 minutes to make the mercy flight from Vancouver to Port Mellon and back. With bad weather closing in, he had to fly at a height of only 50 feet most of the way.

German Role To Be Subject Of Discussions

LONDON, Feb. 15 (AP).—Western leaders worked feverishly behind the scenes of a British Monarch's funeral today to stave off a major diplomatic failure — a failure to settle West Germany's role in the defense of Europe.

Official sources reported these developments:

United States, British and French foreign ministers arranged definitely to meet here Sunday — whether the present French government is in office or not after tomorrow's confidence vote.

They arranged also a face-to-face talk with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer for Monday on future Allied-German military and political relations.

Two special meetings were set up for Saturday as a prelude to the full-dress conferences.

First, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden will talk with Adenauer at the Foreign Office.

Then State Secretary Dean Acheson and four close advisers will go into conference with Eden and his aides. The Anglo-American discussion will range far beyond Germany—and likely will deal with Atlantic Pact business, the situation in the Far East, Middle East matters and Russian foreign policy.

Guatemala Invokes Press Censorship

GUATEMALA, Guatemala, Feb. 15 (CP).—The government of Guatemala has announced that all outgoing and incoming press messages are subject to censorship. The government has always retained the right of censorship in case of a threat to its security but in the latest move no reasons were given.

Egypt Denies Connivance

CAIRO, Feb. 15 (AP).—Egypt has rejected a British accusation that there was official connivance in the bloody Jan. 26 rioting in Cairo which resulted in the death of nine Britons and extensive damage to foreign property.

An Egyptian Foreign Office note made public today counter-charged that British action in Ismailia on the previous day had set the stage for the disorders. The reply to the British protests recalled that at Ismailia 46 auxiliary police were killed by British forces, 72 others injured, hundreds taken prisoner and government barracks burned.

One Canadian, J. Macleod Boyer, died in the burning of Cairo's Turf Club.

Letter Describes Death in Fire Of Trade Commissioner in Cairo

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 15 (AP).—Canadians here today said a personal letter from Cairo, Egypt, told details of the heroic death during the Cairo riots of J. Macleod Boyer, Canadian trade commissioner.

The letter said Boyer died trying to convince a woman to jump from the second-story window of the Turf Club, set afire by the rioting mobs. Boyer, a native of Victoria, N.B., died Jan. 26.

"Boyer was seen at the window trying to persuade Mrs. Crawford to jump," wrote one man, who saw the incident from another building. "Then, after some time, both were seen to fall back. They died of asphyxiation. He had turned his automobile over to one of the employees of the Embassy so she could go home, and took refuge in the Turf Club.

"The mob poured kerosene on the building. Those who had taken refuge upstairs began to jump out of windows, landing on the cement areaway below. Mrs. Reid jumped, and the mob tried to pour kerosene on her and burn her. But an Egyptian employee stood over her with a gun and refused to allow any of the mob to touch her. Then we saw Thomas, the club secretary, jump."

Ivan Kilpatrick, manager of the Royal Insurance Company, and a club overseer were able to get them hidden, and later to a hospital where they are recovering.

"The new government is working hard toward peace."

The name of the writer was not made public, nor that of the person receiving the letter. There was no identification of Mrs. Crawford and Mrs. Reid.

Victoria's Highway Outlet

WHEN Mr. E. C. Carson relinquished the office of provincial minister of public works some weeks ago on the withdrawal of the Progressive Conservatives from coalition, he left one piece of unfinished business which is particularly important to Victoria and the Island. This is the re-routing of the southern end of the Island Highway to do away with the congestion and hazards of the Gorge and "Death Alley" sections. The construction of an express highway leading out of Victoria was a coalition pledge back in 1948, repeatedly renewed later, but without visible result so far.

Party politics should have nothing to do with this project, which is one of patent necessity for public safety and movement of traffic in peak seasons, and to make the most heavily used section of the highway conform to the high standard of the rest of its length. It is natural, however, that the recent change of political weather should arouse anxiety among interested organizations. A few months ago Mr. Carson promised that work would begin this year; but Mr. Carson is no longer in charge. Responsibility for honoring the promise, made on behalf of the coalition administration then in existence, devolves on those Liberals now carrying on what they themselves describe as a coalition government. So long as they wave that banner, they bind themselves to all the pledges made when coalition was a reality.

Lands and Forests Minister Kenney, who succeeded Mr. Carson as minister of public works, has agreed to meet representatives of the city council and other public bodies on Feb. 21 for a discussion of highway policy affecting the Island. It is to be hoped that from that meeting will come a clear statement that so long as it remains in office the present government will abide faithfully by the promise to which it subscribed earlier. Whether a general election is called early or late, the highway construction season is at hand, and a start on a new main outlet from Victoria should be made the moment it is practical to do so.

Ice Hockey at the Arena

THE MAYOR is unsound in backing Mr. Lester Patrick's contention that because the players of the coast amateur league are paid amateurs they should be barred from using the Memorial Arena. Such hair-splitting is bizarre in view of the fact that Mr. Patrick's own players are also paid, and that it would be difficult to find in all of Canada senior hockey players who operate in accordance with the Olympic code, which, incidentally, is itself suspect regarding paid athletes.

The Memorial Arena was not built by the people of Victoria for one class of hockey player and not another. Nowhere in its terms of reference is any such distinction drawn. It was designed for the use of all and sundry skating or hockey activity, provided only that the users paid their way and that they could be accommodated. Any attempt to draw an ethical line, as it were, is wholly irrelevant and out of place.

"Obviously the arena cannot provide playing time for all leagues that might want to engage it. On this basis there may be no room for the coast amateur league, but that is a far different thing from being barred on some newly created ethical grounds, which one imagines have been raised merely because of a fear that professional hockey may lose public favor if people glimpse and like a certain alternative brand.

Where the arena commission went wrong was in making itself a party to a monopoly arrangement by signing a contract that savored of discrimination. Mr. Patrick's part in this agreement was astute but perfectly above board, and it is his right to protect his own interests. On the other hand it is the place of the operators of the arena to avoid being embroiled in league rivalries.

It is anomalous, also, to find the Mayor entering this dispute, since the prerogative is not his to determine who should or should not be given use of the arena. That is the business of the arena commission, which one hopes will be kept free altogether of City Hall politics.

B.C.'s Second Gamble

AS PREMIER JOHNSON announced this week, British Columbia is taking a second gamble in the New York money market, this time borrowing $22,500,000 over a 25-year period and $7,500,000 for five years. Not as announced by the premier, but as the results a quarter of a century from now may prove, neither the ultimate cost nor the "price" of these borrowings can be stated today by anyone. The best the treasury can say is that the loans were effected at an apparent cost of this or that, but depending largely on whatever may happen to the rate of exchange between Canadian and United States currency during the long-term borrowing period.

Not in dispute is the fact that British Columbia is stepping outside of its assets for the year to date to fund $20,000,000 in treasury bills held by the bank, and $10,000,000 for advances made similarly to the power commission, presumably for capital works. These are considerable debts to have accumulated in the form of treasury notes, whatever their use; and their funding now is at the same risk that applied to the first British Columbia foreign borrowing of the same fiscal year a month or so back. The usual reasons are rendered as to the difficulty of borrowing in Canada, but borrowing with the costs in blank has proved a very costly experiment for Canadian provinces before. It is sowing the wind, with the hope that fate will be kind and we shall not have to reap the whirlwind.

MOTORIZED WHEEL CHAIR

Sir,—Re the story on the front page about Tommy Ward, the pigeons, and his old-hand-propelled wheel chair.

Mr. Ward as well as his chair are getting older and his arms are no longer as strong as they used to be to keep that chair going. He would very much like to an electric chair like mine, but so far as I can gather, the cost is beyond him. The cost would be something over $1,100. I don't know how much more, but whatever has been the rise in price since 1947, when mine was imported from the Stanley Engineering Company, Egham, Surrey.

I had been hoping a second-hand one for him could be found, but it's proving quite a wait.

He says that one of the service clubs in town proposed to provide him such a chair, but nothing ever came of it . . .

SOCIAL CREDIT SPLIT

Sir,—In her letter Mrs. Arsens believes in the party system of methods rather than the Social Credit idea of trying to unite the people in a common policy for results. When she joined the Social Credit party in B.C., which is run by Alberta, did she know that there was already in existence both a resolution and a policy which prohibited such an organization?

At the the first national convention held in Toronto in 1944 and the last national convention held in 1946 all delegates, including Mr. Manning and Mr. Low, agreed to adhere to the principles and tenets of Social Credit as enunciated by C. H. Douglas; and to a policy, Para 5 of which "fully recognizes the local sovereignty of the people in national, provincial and municipal spheres," and also Para 6 which reads, "As Social Crediters we are implacably opposed to any form of political 'party' machine in that it is fundamental to an effective democracy that each elected representative of the people should and must act as the servant of his constituents and therefore must retain at all times complete liberty of action to express their will."

Can one explain the apostasy of both Mr. Manning and Mr. Low who, being Albertans, interfere in the affairs of this province contrary to Para 5, and who aid and abet the B.C. league of party politicians contrary to Para 6, contrary to Douglas' teaching to which they promised to adhere?

LITTERED BEACHES

Sir,—One morning recently at Gonzales Bay we got, via water, about ten sacks of garbage, crushed tins, vegetable leavings, papers, and a lot of different types of bottles: a lovely sight to behold, from one end of the beach to the other.

When the city public works were phoned about the garbage the question was raised by them, "What makes you think it is city garbage from the scow?"

It could have come across the Strait from Port Angeles or Port Townsend, but I don't think it did. Why pass the buck? We who live here have seen enough garbage float in here before the city put in a garbage crusher, to know it could only come from one place—off the scow.

The reason could be that due to strong wind and an incoming tide it was swept our way, but how long is the city going to use the water as a dumping place for garbage and sewage?

Vancouver doesn't dump its garbage into the inlet. It has an incinerator into which all garbage goes, leaving only ash which is used as fill where needed.

The Clover Point outlet for sewage can no longer handle the situation there. Is it not time another method of disposal be looked into?

Victoria has used the ocean as a dumping spot, but now comes the time where a change in method is needed. The garbage crusher is fine as a crusher, but couldn't the garbage then be used as a fill, instead of letting it wash up on the beaches as it does?

SCOTTISH SUCCESSION

Sir,—I always thought the Scots were smart people. If they were really so, would they by now not have announced that Queen Mother Elizabeth (their own Scottish lassie) was their Queen Elizabeth I and so leave out present sorrowing little Queen Elizabeth II to us all? A nicety that could so easily be bridged.

Imported Skills

By FRANK KELLEY

RE this Realm of Canada, in which certain statistics covering a ten-year period from 1941 to 1951 were recently released, the figures revealed that for every six newcomers entering its portals approximately five departed. Incomers were supposed to number 591,000, while outgoers totaled 486,000.

Those figures would indicate some worthwhile endeavors had been made in one direction, and a lack of them in another. Canada needs new folk, many of them; but something surely should be attempted to retain those already here and in part familiar with the possibilities of Canada's far-flung acres. At the same time it is good to know apparently sensible ways and means are being explored to find human material suitable for meeting the requirements of the present industrial upsurge, long overdue.

* * *

One must applaud Canada's Minister of Immigration Harris for doing his part in providing transportation, as this seems to be a major stumbling block hindering the smooth flow of potential citizens applying for entry permits, and who have already been closely screened by immigration officers of the realm in various European countries. Nevertheless other ways and means might be sought to keep those already here—that is, if they are not too difficult to convince that opportunity is still knocking at the door of every Canadian ready to go along with the ever-persistent summoner.

With everything apparently set for a major industrial splurge all across the country, it would appear to be good business to employ flying craft, recently proposed by the immigration minister, to bring skilled Europeans to Canada. For, from what one hears of the type approved in recent months by agents of the government, there is no doubt but that this land will be the gainer through the foresight displayed by all concerned with the current selection of future citizens.

* * *

How different the industrial picture might have been if, instead of planning mass migration ventures as were started at times in the past for settling blocks of agricultural land, provisions had been made to allow a certain percentage of skilled artisans admittance, a type of immigrant Canada could always have absorbed without hurt. Many, tops in wanted skills, are now among the newcomers, one understands; and they will undoubtedly help fashion a greater Canada, if treated considerately.

Frankly, it was with some doubt I listened to an old friend recount something of the excellent selections now being made by Canadian officials from groups of displaced persons eager to start anew in a land of some promise. It seemed a bit fantastic, what he told me; but then, this is a fantastic age to some of us. He assured me that the values placed on their services could be verified. He personally knew of several instances of individuals who had come to Victoria in the past few months who were doing extremely well and rated high in the opinion of their employers.

* * *

One chap he mentioned was an electrician from Austria, who had been given employment just over three months ago at an initial salary of $125 a month by a Vancouver Island concern. A master of his trade, he had become so valuable to the company in various ways his salary already was $300 for the monthly period. In the meantime he had acquired an automobile—on terms, I presume—and had purchased a ticket at a local transportation office for $300 to bring his fiancee from Austria to Victoria.

Another electrician, starting at the same salary, employed by another Southern Vancouver Island concern, was now getting $400 a month and had been offered $500 by another outfit, for good reasons, no doubt. Must be pretty good material, don't you think?

Reports From Ottawa

THE men with the wide stripes on their tunic sleeves who plan the R.C.A.F.'s future are seriously concerned over the future of Russian aircraft in Korea.

The situation in a nutshell is that American airmen flying F86 Sabre jets in Korea are finding the Russian MIG15's almost more than they can handle. And the R.C.A.F. is currently, investing more than $300,000,000 in F86's.

One hundred and forty-five Canadian Sabres of the F86E model have been delivered to jet-hungry R.C.A.F. fighter squadrons which had been making do with obsolete piston-engined P51 Mustangs and outmoded Vampire jets. They are the first of an order for 700 which the government placed with Canadair Limited of Montreal—an order which, when filled, will equip some 25 R.C.A.F. squadrons, including 11 which will be stationed in Europe, with F86's as Canada's first-line day fighter.

* * *

Judging by its performance, the MIG15 seems to be just as good an airplane as the F86. Some authorities consider it a shade better. It has an astonishing rate of climb, high manœuverability, and at heights over 32,000 feet all MIG models are faster than the F86. Some MIG's in action in Korea have shown superior speed down to 20,000 feet.

Experts on our side admit reluctantly that the metallurgical know-how which went into the MIG jet engines is better than ours—reflecting the brains of German technicians who went to Russia after the war. There's an opinion that aerodynamically the MIG is somewhat inferior to the F86, but it's still first class. Its armament, including a 30 or 37 mm. cannon, is heavier than the F86's, although its rate of fire isn't as rapid as that from the F86's six .50 cal. machine guns. And finally, the attention the Russian designers paid to the physical and psychological needs of the pilot is remarkable.

As a result, more than one U.S.A.F. pilot in Korea would be glad to trade his F86 for a MIG, if he could keep his radar gunsight—and, of course, stay on our side of the war.

* * *

The Russians and their satellites seem to have MIG's in far greater quantities than our side has F86's, indicating that their production schedule is considerably ahead of that of North America. So further disturbing questions arise:

"What else have the Russians up their sleeves? Have they better fighters in production? And how will the newer Western jets stack up against the MIG15 and later Soviet models?"

The West has several fighters newer than the F86 in various stages of design and production. The British have the Hawker P1067, the jet and rocket-powered P1072, and the delta-winged GA5. The Americans have the all-weather F89 fighter and others. And this country is rumored to be working on plans for a delta-winged model.

The big question is whether these new British and American planes, some of which already are in quantity production, are the match for later MIG's, like the 19 model; the YAK25, reputed to be the fastest and best Soviet swept-wing fighter; and other jets which the Reds may have in production by the time our new fighters replace the Venoms and F86's.

Even if newer British and American jets are better than what the Russians have coming, it will take two or three years to meet our air force's needs. In the meantime, the R.C.A.F. will have spent a third of a billion dollars on F86's which, if they're not already outmoded by supersonic speedsters, may be obsolescent soon.

It's a problem to which there is no neat and easy answer. Instead, it's further proof, if any were needed, that the cost of an armament race over a course which is constantly changing due to rapid technological advances is fantastically high.

Mr. Abbott's Surplus

(From The Toronto Telegram)

IN the last peace-time Dominion budget prior to the Second World War, Hon. Charles Dunning, then the minister of finance, announced that the cost of running the government for the fiscal year 1939-40 would amount to $550,000,000. Mr. Dunning's budget was regarded as putting a heavy burden on the backs of the Canadian people. It is recalled now to emphasize that the whole Dominion budget 13 years ago was less than the surplus of $721,600,000 which the present minister of finance, Mr. Abbott, has accumulated in the first nine months of the present fiscal year.

It is no excuse for Mr. Abbott to say that he didn't expect a surplus one-twentieth as big. A minister of finance is expected to calculate with reasonable accuracy the revenues which his taxes will bring in. Mr. Abbott was not without experience in levying taxes, for he had only to look at his own record in previous years to see that his estimates of revenues had often been exceeded by hundreds of millions of dollars. He ought to have profited from this experience, for there were no sudden changes in the economic climate to indicate a reversal in the country's productive powers.

No one would accuse Mr. Abbott of deliberately underestimating revenue in order that he could produce a whopping surplus, but this tribute to his probity carries with it the inference that his calculations were wild. Finance ministers ought not to err when they are extracting huge sums from the people in taxes and thereby adding to the cost of living already too high.

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

IN Scotland last autumn I saw thousands of Canadian trees, Douglas fir and Sitka spruce, hard at the job of re-clothing the Highland hills that had been stripped of their native Scots pine during the war by our Canadian forestry battalions. Britain is extremely busy planting herself from the New Forest clear up to the top of Scotland, with Canadian trees: and we are busy, in thousands of private plantations, growing the Scots pine for the Christmas tree trade.

This exchange of trees is an old story with Britain. Many trees that are supposed to be native to the British Isles were introduced centuries ago. The Romans brought the walnut and the sweet or Spanish chestnut to Britain, 2,000 years ago, when it was a Roman colony. The sycamore is referred to by Chaucer, and may have been brought from Asia by the Romans, or possibly by the Crusaders.

* * *

The horse chestnut, which we imported to Canada in large quantities 75 years ago, is not English but came to England in 1550, from the Balkans. That was a great era in British tree planting, every ship that came home bringing seeds or seedlings of anything interesting in the way of foreign trees. Our white cedar was brought from America around 1600.

Such trees as the famous London plane tree, the Lombardy poplar and the weeping willow that graces many an ancestral acre, are fairly recent additions to the British scene. The plane tree came from Asia as recently as 1724, the Lombardy poplar from Italy in 1758, and the weeping willow from Japan somewhere about that same period.

Britain's most characteristic native trees are the oak, beech, elm, poplar, ash, willow, white birch, lime and a great variety of smallish trees such as the maple, holly, hazel and sallow. The British have always loved wood.

Symbol of Unity

THE English monarchy has never stood more rocklike than it does today.

In an already dark hour of national adversity the British people face the passing of a greatly loved monarch, and a young princess faces the grave responsibilities of the sovereign role for which she has undergone such arduous training. Yet no one can doubt that this sad moment will knit the British people and the British Commonwealth into closer unity and renew their devotion to the traditional symbol of that unity, the British Crown.

Americans and many others in many lands are joining in warm tribute to the quiet, conscientious man who came to the throne so unexpectedly and left it more firmly established in the hearts of his countrymen than when he reluctantly accepted it. Lacking the eloquence and fire of his wartime prime minister, he symbolized in quite another way British tenacity, courage, and character through the days of terror when England stood alone and the days of austerity when it faced a stern new world.

* * *

To understand the British monarchy today it is useful to realize how important a part "character" plays in it. If George VI has strengthened the institution of democratic monarchy in Britain it is because he exemplified that quiet devotion to duty which is the bedrock of British character.

And in that wider commonwealth of nations which has replaced an earlier empire, the King-Emperor of yesterday has become a democratic symbol of unity, the sovereign link between equals and partners. Not force but common ideals and interests hold the Commonwealth together today, and the wealth of affection poured out on the serious young princess in her recent trip to Canada is a gauge of the strength of that union.

Let us hope and pray that her accession to the throne may symbolize a new era of achievement for that spirit of determination and of adventure which has come down to modern England from the spacious days of another greatly loved Elizabeth.

The Consolation

All, all is right; by God ordain'd or done,
And who, but God, resum'd the friends he gave?
And have I been complaining, then, so long?
Complaining of His favors; pain and death?
Who, without Pain's advice, would o'er be good?
Who, without Death, but would be good in vain?
Pain is to save from pain; all punishment,
To make for peace; and death, to save from Death;
And second death, to guard immortal life;
To rouse the careless, the presumptuous awe;
And turn the tide of souls another way;
By the same tenderness divine ordain'd,
That planted Eden, and high bloom'd for man,
A fairer, Eden, endless in the skies.

In the World Of Religion

By ARCHDEACON F. GWYNNE LIGHTBOURN

Nowhere has the mourning for the death of His Late Majesty been more genuine than in the churches of the Commonwealth.

The King's faith was real and robust: he never hesitated to express it, without any hint of self-consciousness or apology, such as too often marks the halting references to religion by public men. He knew that he reigned "by the Grace of God"—by the grace which he regularly drew upon by prayer, Bible reading and sacrament.

He exemplified the virtues of the Christian gentleman — every inch a man, and truly gentle. As the whole Commonwealth thanks God for his life and reign, its millions will also pray in faith that the beauty of holiness, which really means "wholeness" or health, and which our new Queen has already displayed, may continue to shine forth from the Occupant of the Throne.

He was the first Franciscan ordained in Canada since the days of the Recollets, and at the end of the last century was given the responsibility of re-establishing the work of his order in Quebec City. Fifty years ago he built the house to which he returned to spend his declining years. For a time he was superior of the Franciscans in Montreal.

The Manchester Guardian used equally favorable language editorially. Dr. Malan had referred to Mr. Scott as "a hostile and fanatical foreigner and agitator." Bishop Bell called him "a man of upright character, modest and selfless," and added, "It is sad that the South African government should refuse to permit a citizen of his high principles to return to South Africa."

Scouts, Guides to Mark Baden-Powell Birthday

The great experiment with youth made by Lord Baden-Powell in the early years of this century will be hailed by thousands of Boy Scouts and Girl Guides in British Columbia this month.

B.C. Scouts and Guides will join with others in the British Empire in observing the birthday of the founder of their movement during the week starting Feb. 27.

The late Lord Baden-Powell lived to see his experimental camp held on Brownsea Island off the coast of Dorset, England, grow into a mighty organization, reaching into every country of the world, with the exception of Iron Curtain zones, and bringing his ideals of clean, Christian living to millions of boys and girls.

Appealing to instincts of adventure and action, and having no color or racial barriers, Scouting fosters in youth a desire to make their greatest contribution to the welfare of their people and countries.

The Scout's road is a continuous path which leads from the tender pad stage to responsible citizenship.

First, he learns to rid himself of selfishness and adopt self-discipline; then he learns to look after himself and accept responsibility, developing wider interests and skills in the practise of leadership and self-reliance.

The last, or Rover stage, teaches him the full importance of his participation in the affairs of his community and country.

Victorians Claimed Chucklingest

Chuckling championship of North America was claimed for supposedly reserved Victoria by a greeting card dealer here, yesterday.

She said she based the claim partly on a report from a Coutts card salesman who rated Victoria tops on the continent for humorous card sales.

Her own experiences in selling record quantities of the humorous cards backed up the salesman's report, she claimed.

The Coutts people are among the world's major greeting card manufacturers, employing an estimated 300 artists.

According to the salesman's story, several of them could be employed just thinking up new ways to make Victorians laugh.

The local dealer said, in effect, at almost any hour of the day customers here could be found doubled up over the humorous card counter after reading the latest Coutts comic.

The fun goes on unabated with respect to Valentine and birthday cards. Things are a little [illegible] Day cards.

Woman Hurt, Cars Damaged

One woman was slightly injured and six cars received medium damage in three separate accidents in the city Thursday night.

Police said Jane Haff, 49, 2438 Lincoln Road, was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital for an injured ankle after the car in which she was a passenger was in a collision with another driven by Stanley H. Frame, 2660 Dufferin, at Vancouver and Johnson. Driver of the first car was Anne McCallum, 2285 Woodland.

Earlier, another accident near the Johnson Street bridge was reported to police. Cars were driven by G. L. Lee, 1410 Pembroke, and George Shepherd, H.M.C.S. Naden.

At about 9 p.m. police attended an accident at Cook and Fairfield. Drivers involved were Gilbert T. Russell, H.M.C.S. Naden, and Henry Christenson, 423 Quebec.

Daily Astrology

By RITA DEL MAR

FOR SATURDAY, FEB. 16, 1952

Today's quotation: "To judge human nature rightly, a man may sometimes have a very small experience, provided he has a very large heart."—Bulwer-Lytton.

Saturday for everyone: Be friendly, co-operative, ingenious, original, resourceful to make the most of what this day offers. Overlook the shortcomings of others in order to perceive and strengthen their good points.

Look for your birthdate and birthsign below.

March 21 to April 19 (Aries)—Overtake gains; build status; make advances with aid of teammates, others.

April 20 to May 20 (Taurus)—Engage in transactions with associates and public. Circulate; grasp outlook of others.

May 21 to June 20 (Gemini)—Occupy yourself with documents, letters; move briskly to dispose of a heavy schedule.

June 21 to July 22 (Cancer)—Take up activities that afford fun, stimulation. Loved ones should be with you.

July 23 to Aug. 22 (Leo)—Conclude projects advantageously; make pleasing headway at work, in household doings.

Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 (Virgo)—Push your chances for diversion with kin, cherished ones, persons nearby.

Sept. 23 to Oct. 22—(Libra)—Employ mental alacrity to get ahead; take up openings for gainful measures or revisions.

Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 (Scorpio)—You may glean rewards, tidings from a jaunt or sudden call. Scan arriving letters; do things at first hand.

Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 (Sagittarius)—Clear the slate of trifling matters; find a way out of perplexities. Make headway.

Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 (Capricorn)—Get in swing with "fair weather conditions." Give united action preference over "solo performances."

Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 (Aquarius)—Climb to the peak of favor; manage mature people or those in authority with tact, charm.

Feb. 19 to March 20 (Pisces)—Contact pals, "rooters" who can help promote over-all program. Dispatch mail; promote plans.

Planning ahead—Good for sociability, entertaining, etc.: Feb. 16, 19; daytime of 20, 25, 29.

Quakers Send Big Shipment

Twenty-five large cartons with a total weight of 1,500 pounds of clothing, footwear and bedding were shipped this week by the Society of Friends (Quakers) to Europe.

The parcels will be sent from Quakers' headquarters in England to centres in Europe and the Middle East, to aid some of the world's 25,000,000 refugees.

Quakers are appealing for continued help for the refugees, many of whom are old and ill, or helpless children. Contributions are accepted at the Friends Meeting House, 1831 Fern Street, or at the Co-operative Grocery, 618 Pandora.

Red Newsmen Lose Visas

CAIRO, Feb. 15 (AP) — The Egyptian interior ministry has refused to renew visas for correspondents of the Soviet Tass News Agency and Moscow's official Communist party paper, Pravda.

A spokesman said visas of correspondents Rudakov of Tass and Russadin of Pravda had expired and "the ministry has not yet renewed them."

There was no immediate information whether the correspondents have been expelled or still remain in Egypt.

The new government of Premier Aly Maher Pasha has taken a strong anti-Communist stand recently.

Greater Victoria Recreation Commission First Aim

A Greater Victoria recreation commission will be the prime objective this year of the area's recreation council.

A recommendation for creation of such a commission has already been sent to Victoria City Council and to councils of Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Saanich.

Officials of the Greater Victoria recreation council, elected at recent meetings, are: John Halstead, president; Mrs. Blair-Reid, treasurer; Dr. Henrietta R. Anderson, recording secretary, and Mrs. M. Broadley, corresponding secretary.

Two-year directors are F. O. Barrie, W. S. Daly, Mr. Halstead, A. Jacobs, Mrs. H. F. Ketchell, A. D. Lyle, W. J. Pynn, R. Reeve, W. Roger, C. A. Ross.

One-year directors are Dr. Anderson, Earl B. Allen, R. W. Barnes, J. Bennellack, George Holt, H. F. Ketchell, Ald. Frank Mulliner, Mrs. Broadley, Mrs. K. McIntyre, Mrs. W. B. Mortimer, and Mrs. Blair-Reid.

Election of a vice-president and further standing committees was postponed until a later meeting.

Directors will, until further notice, hold their regular meetings on the second Wednesday of each month at Welfare House, 1951 Cook.

Their old office at 548 Bastion Street is closed, but communications can be addressed to Mr. Mrs. Broadley, 316 Niagara Halstead, 1037 Lyall Street, or Street.

Booming B.C. Faces Labor Bottleneck

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

One of the points at which business and organized labor do not see eye to eye is the question of increasing by immigration the population of British Columbia.

The arrival of the aluminum industry, extension of the pulp and paper industries and the revival of base metal mining means that the existing labor force of the province is going to be inadequate to meet the demand. Already in some of the more outlandish parts, such as Ocean Falls, employers have to depend almost entirely upon newcomers to Canada, if not to British Columbia for their new workers.

Once the great pot-lines at Kitimat start heating up, there will be a great call for workers in that area. Alcan has no labor force problem in its fertile, populous Saguenay Valley, but it will find a different story at Kitimat.

As many of the operations in the refinery of aluminum are skilled or partially skilled jobs, it is reasonable to assume that for a start at least Alcan will have to import a number of its experienced Quebeckers.

At the present moment, when so much of the new B.C. industry is in the development stage, it is possible to overlook the fact that suddenly there is going to be a demand for labor that the current small reserve cannot possibly satisfy.

The need for an increased population is stressed in the current monthly bulletin of the Vancouver Stock Exchange.

CONSUMPTION LIMITED

"It is population that makes the difference in the growth of domestic trade . . . and a strong domestic trade often becomes the forerunner of export capability.

"One of B.C.'s prime deterrents in the past has been its small population.

"While the province was struggling to reach its first million people it had a limited domestic purchasing power and a limited capacity to use local products . . .

"In the past ten years B.C. has experienced a growth in population of 41 per cent, which is about 2½ times the Canadian average. Our population today is about 1,200,000. If growth continues at its present rate we would have 1,700,000 by 1961, and 2,375,000 by 1971.

"A recession could conceivably slow the growth, although B.C. grew in population each year during the depressed '30's. On the other hand with all kinds of new developments, the population growth in the next ten years could be markedly greater than in the past ten years.

"In any event, this present reality and future assurance of substantial buying power through increased population creates an interesting new set of possibilities for secondary industrial operation based on local consuming power. When secondary industrialization begins it should feed on itself. This is the history of rapid industrialization that has occurred in older settled regions of North America and is currently being experienced down the Pacific Coast of the United States," concludes the Stock Exchange bulletin.

ONTARIO'S EXAMPLE

It would appear that everything else being equal, the ordinary natural rate of population increase will in no way meet the future needs of British Columbia.

The position is one not unlike that which faced Ontario in the immediate postwar years. Ontario developed industrially at an extraordinary pace during the war and has continued to do so through the peace.

The provincial government there, realizing that the rate of progress could only be maintained by immigration, instituted a campaign aimed not only at Europe as a whole but at Britain in particular.

By more or less guaranteeing jobs for various types of craftsmen Ontario was able to persuade many British people to defy currency restrictions and take the chance of setting up life anew in Canada.

Today, there are thousands of British people who need no more than a little official encouragement to take advantage of the opportunities offered by British Columbia's new industries.

My own mail brings me in an average of over two letters per week from people in Britain who want to make B.C. their new home and are seeking advice.

A British Columbia drive, on the lines adopted so successfully by Ontario, would appear timely, and if properly presented might even win over organized labor's approval. In Bill MacAdam, the province already has in London, the man who could make the campaign a success.

CHARITY WARNING

The Financial Post points out this week that when a wife makes a contribution to charity she should ask that the receipt be made out in the name of her husband.

This advice is given in order to avoid arguments with the income tax department, which allows charity deductions up to 10 per cent.

The income tax department is now said to be examining more closely the charitable receipts in the name of the wife which have hitherto been clumped with the husband's receipts.

If the wife makes an income tax return of her own and deducts charitable bequests from her own return it does not matter, but otherwise, advises the Financial Post, it is safer if all receipts are made out in the husband's name.

ANNUITIES CRITICISED

The provision by the government of limited pensions in old age need not interfere with the progress of life insurance, said G. W. Bourke, president at the annual meeting of Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada.

He said that such pensions merely emphasised the desirability of the practice of thrift. However, Mr. Bourke considered that following the introduction of this scheme it was now unnecessary for the government to sell annuities, particularly on a basis which costs the taxpayers money.

"It is not a proper function of government to conduct business in competition with the life companies."

During 1951, Sun Life increased its life insurance in force by $340,000,000 to a total of $4,801,000,000. The international aspect of the company is shown by the breakdown of the insurance in force: Canada, 42 per cent; United States, 37 per cent; Great Britain, 12 per cent; other countries, 9 per cent.

The company has 70,000 policy holders in B.C.

The Pacific Northwest, long famed for its Paul Bunyan-like feats of lumber production, has another accomplishment to boast about.

Six glued-laminated fir beams, each 97 feet long and weighing 7½ tons, the largest and heaviest ever manufactured in this area, are to be used as roof beams for a new school gymnasium in Illinois.

The beams are five feet high and one foot wide. Each contains more than 6,000 board feet of lumber—enough to construct an average family home. Forty-five laminates were used in each beam and thirty workmen were required to feed the gluing machine.

Because of the extreme length and weight of the six "big sticks," Union Pacific Railroad provided one gondola car and two flat cars for the record-breaking shipment.

BETTER AS PARTNERS

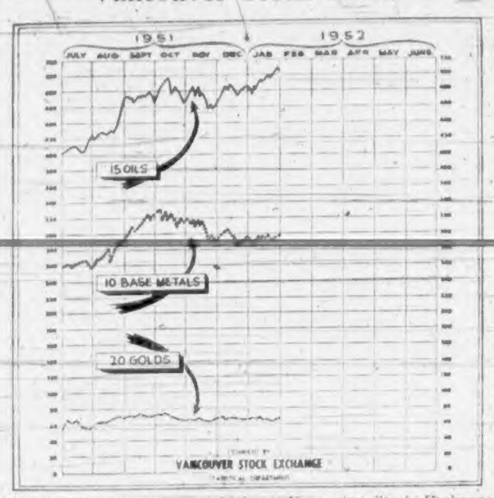

A talk that was of deep interest to small businessmen was given recently to the B.C. section of the Canadian Bar Association by John G. McIntosh, Victoria lawyer.

Mr. McIntosh pointed out that a few years ago it was sound policy for three or four partners in a relatively small business to obtain for themselves the protection of operating as a limited company.

Today with higher corporation taxes, restrictions on depreciation and B.C. social security and municipal aid tax, Mr. McIntosh has come to the conclusion that in many cases the partners would be better off to continue as such rather than set themselves up in a corporation.

The simple old transaction of "incorporating a business" is no longer to be lightly undertaken, says Mr. McIntosh. "In other words income taxes are governing forms under which people in this country must do business. The convenience of businessmen is no longer considered by the government to be a very vital factor."

Vancouver Stock Chart

Western oils rose to a new high on Vancouver Stock Exchange during the month of January. The oils have been the strongest feature since the market reached its peak in October. Base metals and golds have so far failed to reach the highs they established in that month. The averages with highs and lows for the past two months are:

U.S. Pre-Loggers Save Valuable Small Timber

Second-story operators, the Jimmy Valentines of the loggers, are actually being encouraged to practise their unusual calling in most parts of western Oregon and Washington.

A second-story operator is probably better know as a pre-logger. He's the logger with a small crew who goes into a forest before the prime loggers arrive. His job is to take out small trees which will make small saw-logs, pulp logs and poles which would otherwise be smashed and broken when the big timber is cut.

The name second-story comes from the nature of the smaller trees which grow in the shade or the under-story of the towering firs and other conifers, according to W. D. Hagenstein, chief forester for the U.S. Douglas fir industry.

SMALL LOGS SAVED

Pre-loggers are doing a magnificent job of forest conservation, Hagenstein pointed out. The practise is becoming more and more an accepted part of logging in many sections of the Douglas fir region where timber stands are thick and under-story is heavy.

The saving from pre-logging is astounding, Hagenstein pointed out. Volume of small logs salvaged by this pre-logging method may run from a few cords per acre to as much as 20 and 30 cords. Most of these small trees would be crushed and turned into worthless rubble if not taken out before the big trees are cut.

Hagenstein pointed out that pre-logging is more costly than prime logging in cost of volume recovered. The urge to conserve the forest resources is the motivating power back of the industrial forest landowners who insist on pre-logging.

In 1949 pre-loggers covered 1,248 acres of West Coast tree farms, the forester said, and unquestionably many more hundreds of acres not recorded were pre-logged.

British Airway Gets Out of Red

NEW YORK, Feb. 15. British Overseas Airways Corporation on Dec. 31 closed out the first nine months of its fiscal year with a net profit of $1,414,000. In the corresponding period of 1950, B.O.A.C. showed a loss of $8,839,600.

Citing further facts to illustrate what he termed a "remarkable improvement" in the corporation's financial position, Sir Miles Thomas, chairman, declared that in the calendar year of 1951, B.O.A.C. made its first operating profit ($1,794,800) for a 12-month span.

This operating profit enabled B.O.A.C. to "drastically reduce" its over-all deficit by almost $12,000,000, he said. Deficit for 1951 was $2,528,400, compared with $14,389,200 in 1950.

The chairman listed the following traffic gains made in 1951 over the previous year as abetting B.O.A.C.'s financial progress: Passenger trade, 29 per cent; freight tonnage, 17.9 per cent; mail tonnage, 26.2 per cent.

Bell Telephone Plans New Issue

MONTREAL, Feb. 15 (CP).—The Bell Telephone Company of Canada today announced it has applied to the Board of Transport Commissioner for permission to issue capital stock, not exceeding 1,580,000 shares of $25 par value.

The price, terms and conditions require approval of the board which will set the date of the hearing on the company's application. The company plans to issue stocks to shareholders in the ratio of one share for each five shares held.

The company said additional capital is required to pay off temporary bank loans and for enlargement and improvement of lines, plant and system.

Valuable Chemical To Be Made in Canada

A chemical which is an important replacement of glycerin, is used in the manufacture of explosives and as an ingredient in the manufacture of alkyd resins for baked finishes on metals, is to be made in Canada for the first time.

Known as pentaerythritol, it is a comparative newcomer to the chemical industry. It will be manufactured by Canadian Chemical Company at its plant at Edmonton which is due to be completed late this year.

The plant will have sufficient pentaerythritol to supply all Canadian requirements and will have an important surplus for export.

The chemical is used in the finishing of automobiles, refrigerators, stoves and similar consumer goods. It is also used in finishes on military vehicles, weapons and warships.

Canada gets its present supplies—about 3,000,000 pounds—from the United States where its manufacturers are all in the east. From the new factory at Edmonton, Canadian Chemical Co. hopes to supply the mid-western and far-western sections of the United States, while world-wide markets will be served by shipment from Vancouver.

Terminals Speed Drying of Grain

PORT ARTHUR, (CP).—Lakehead grain terminals are spending about $300,000 this winter on additional drying equipment to handle wet western Canada grain.

The new equipment, being installed in bins and other terminal space already constructed, will increase drying capacity at the twin cities by 25 per cent, or about 6,000 bushels an hour.

Work started on the installations, in eight of the 26 terminals here last month, and is expected to be completed by the opening of navigation.

The equipment consists mainly of fan systems and oil furnaces.

Roman Catholics Offer New Bonds

A new offer of $1,000,000 Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation of Halifax 5 per cent first mortgage sinking fund bonds to mature Oct. 1, 1969 is being made at $98.75 by A. E. Ames & Co. At the offer price the yield is over 5.10 per cent.

Sewage Plant Completed At Penticton

PENTICTON, B.C., Feb. 15 (CP).—A $125,000 mechanical breeding ground for bacteria to convert sewage into a valuable agricultural fertilizer has been installed in the city sewage treatment plant here.

When this microbe, known as Aerobic Bacteria, is tumbled around in clear air it multiplies and destroys the impurities in sewage sludge.

This process is so thorough that the water pumped from the plant into the Okanagan River is purer than the river water.

The plant, a huge combination of pipes, pumps and subterranean chambers, was built in 1948 when the public health department began to complain about pollution of the river.

The plant is operated by one man. It handles about 300,000 gallons of sewage sludge a day.

When a new sewer system is completed in 1952, the plant will easily handle the doubled load.

Rails Lead as New York Makes First Gain in Five Sessions

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 (INS).—The stock market held firm but most issues failed to increase the gains they registered early in the session.

Trading was quiet.

[illegible] which marked the first session of higher prices in five days. Atlantic Coastline, Santa Fe, and Missouri-Kansas-Texas preferred were among the stronger carriers. Infrequently-traded New York and Harlem touched a new high at 530, up 10.

Specialties also made good progress. Amerada Petroleum, one of the wider moving issues, spurted more than 13 points at its peak on completion of a new wildcat oil find. Joy Manufacturing gained ground on news of a new oxygen making machine.

However, Howe Sound moved lower after an initial two point gain on split up proposals.

Elsewhere on the list, oil mostly improved while motors were steady. Steels were narrow and metals irregular. Gains and losses for the most part were held to fractions.

Among issues going higher were Cities Service, Truax-Traer, U.S. Gypsum, American Cyanamide, Johns-Mansville, American Can, Texas Pacific Land Trust, American Woolen and National Distillers.

Dipping were Union Carbide, Standard of N.J., Dow Chemical, Allied Chemical, Bethlehem Steel and Union Pacific.

Curb shares generally were higher. Bonds were steady. Cotton was irregular and grains irregularly lower.

There were 1,118 issues traded of which 423 advanced, 398 declined and 298 were unchanged.

Grain Prices

CHICAGO, Feb. 15 (AP).—Mill buying gave a lift to wheat today while the rest of the market just plodded along in a narrow line.

Even in wheat the demand could not be called buoyant.

Feed grains eased early, but recovered just about all the lost ground later in sympathy with wheat's advance. The new crop soybean contracts showed flashes of strength.

Wheat closed ⅜ lower to ⅛ higher, March $2.52½; corn ⅜ lower to ¼ higher, March $1.82½-$1.82; oats unchanged to ⅜ lower, March 82⅝-¾; rye ¾ to 1 cent higher, May $1.96 and soybeans ⅛ to 2½ lower, March $2.97¾-⅛.

Cash wheat, none; corn, No. 2 yellow, 1.87½; oats, No. 1 heavy mixed, 94; barley nominal, malting 1.30-75, feed 1.25-40; soybeans, none.

James Bay Boxers Get Ready

With annual Vancouver Island Golden Gloves tournament scheduled at Bay Street Armory next Saturday, entries from James Bay Boxing Club are undergoing stiff training in preparation. Island High School Hoop Teams Play for Colonist Cup in March

By IAN GLENDAY

One of the biggest tourneys of the year is on tap for local cage fans on March 14 and 15 when the pick of the Island High schools meet at the Victoria High School gym for the second annual Vancouver Island High School Basketball Tournament.

Eight high schools, each representing a zone, will battle for the Colonist Cup, awarded to the winner at the conclusion of the two-day affair. Porky Andrews' Alberni quintet captured the handsome bauble last year when it dumped Victoria High Totems in the final game.

Also at stake is the most valuable player award, won last year by Alberni's Don "Twitter" Hill.

As Vancouver Island is divided into six zones, playoffs will be held to determine who represents each section. These zones are: Alberni - Parksville - Qualicum; Tsolum-Campbell River-Comox-Courtenay - Cumberland; Nanaimo-Ladysmith; Salt Spring-Lake Cowichan-Duncan; Milne's Landing; North Saanich-Mount Newton - Esquimalt - Oak Bay-Mount View; Victoria.

All rules of the tournament are based on B.C. high school regulations, the only exception stating that a player on a commercial league team is eligible for this tournament. Whistle-toting chores will be handled by officials of the Victoria and District Basketball Association.

Eight games are scheduled for Friday, March 14, starting at 1 p.m. with the finals slated for the following evening commencing at 6 p.m. To qualify for the top two positions, a team must win all of its games. A consolation round will be held for the teams knocked out in the first contest.

STARTED LAST YEAR

Instigator of the tourney was athletic director Laurie Wallace of Victoria High School. It was mainly through his efforts that the two-day jamboree was one of the highlights of the local basketball scene last year. This year's event should prove equally as popular.

The tournament is based on the Olympic motto of:

"The important thing is not winning, but taking part. The essential thing is not conquering, but fighting well."

With this ideal setting the standard of play, the athletes can not go far wrong in providing the playing customers with clean, top-flight competative basketball.

Alberni has again lined up a contending aggregation. Minus Porky Andrews and their starry forward, Don "Twitter" Hill, the Up-Islanders, nevertheless, have a strong squad that could go all the way as best indicated by the fact that they held the classy California All-Stars to the lowest point total of any Canadian West Coast high school.

However, the calibre of basketball throughout the city schools is on the upswing, with several institutions capable of upsetting Alberni.

Victoria High Totems, the host team, probably came up with its best performance of the season against California and have shown signs of coming to life.

DEFINITE THREATS

Mount View, currently on top of the inter-high loop, has been the surprise of the season and loom as strong contenders. Esquimalt has a definite asset in height, while Oak Bay has not, as yet, shown the form that carried it to the inter-high school title with an unblemished record.

Strength of the Up-Island squads is unknown, but Nanaimo, which finished third last year, will need watching.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

It's wonderful, sometimes, what a holiday can do for a person. Take the case of John Richardson, for instance. The secretary of the B.C. Soccer Commission arrived back in Vancouver last Sunday, after five weeks in California, bubbling over with plans for an international Coast Soccer League stretching from Vancouver to Los Angeles. It would include, in addition to its northern and southern anchors—about 1,500 miles apart, incidentally—Seattle, San Francisco and, perhaps, Victoria.

Richardson's enthusiasm for the project apparently reached the boiling-over point when he attended the U.S. inter-collegiate final in San Francisco between Temple and San Francisco. The crowd of 10,000 and the brand of soccer were so surprising that Richardson could no longer contain himself.

"It's a dream I thought was still 10 years away," he jubilated, inferring that the time is now.

Well, at least "dream" is the proper word. There doesn't appear to be one logical reason to believe such a far-flung league would have even the remotest chance of being financially successful, now or in the foreseeable future.

First of all, it would have to be an outright professional league with players on full-time salary. Add to this necessary payment of amusement taxes and top-heavy travelling expenses, and the cost of operation is far out of line for a schedule that, at its very best, could only give each club 15 home gates. Certainly, Victoria could not support such an ambitious venture and there is no indication that Seattle would, even if it had the players.

And what about Vancouver? While Richardson was soaking up California sunshine, soccer activity there was at a standstill because of frozen and snowed-under playing fields, and that's the way it has been for the past few seasons. Further, the mainland metropolis still has no suitable, turfed playing field, and it supports the Coast Soccer League, Canada's best, with only about 1,200 fans a match, despite the bargain admission charge of 50 cents.

I think Mr. Richardson should spend next winter at home and see what can be done there before he goes branching off all over the United States. There is nothing wrong with our present set-up that a little better selling wouldn't cure.

The writer hopes that there will be a change in the P.C.H.L. penalty rule next season. There is no serious objection here to the delayed penalty rule if no icing of the puck is permitted while playing shorthanded, but the delayed penalty combined with icing is taking much of the excitement out of penalty-killing . . . Victoria United will lose Gordie Hayward, one of their few spares, next month when he leaves for employment in Kamloops and it may be difficult to find a replacement . . . Bade Didrikson Zaharias may give a golf exhibition in Vancouver next summer and may make another appearance here . . . Mercurys Trounce German Team 15-1; Norse Skier Wins

By JACK SULLIVAN

OSLO, Feb. 15 (CP)—Canada moved sharply into the winter Olympics spotlight tonight with an artistic 15-1 lacing of Germany's hockey team by the Edmonton Mercurys.

But the gold medal honors in today's long series of sports events went to the winners in the two finals completed.

Stein-Eriksen, a lean 24-year-old Norwegian skier, and Germany's world champion bobsledder, Andreas Ostler, became champions in their own right.

Tonight marked the opening of the round-robin hockey championship series which does not end until Feb. 24, and the eventual winner may not be known until then.

The United States, Czechoslovakia and Sweden kept pace with the Edmonton team in scoring opening-round hockey victories.

The American team squeezed through a 3-2 win over Norway. Czechoslovakia turned back Poland 8-2, and Sweden won as easily, 9-2, over Finland.

STEALS GLAMOR

The glamor of a championship, however, went to Eriksen and Ostler.

Eriksen showed the way to a big field of 85 skiers, representing 29 countries, in the men's giant slalom race.

Ostler and his brakeman, Lorenz Nieberl, continued where they left off yesterday and rode their sled "Cognac" to victory in the two-man bob event, completed today.

High-up placings by Austria skiers boosted the point-standing total for Austria, after completion of three final events in two days, to within half a point of that of the leading United States total of 17½.

The points, on a 10-5-4-3-2-1 basis for the first six finishers, are generally accepted although not officially recognized in the Olympics.

Next highest to Austria's 17 were Germany, with 14, Norway 11 and Switzerland 9.

CANADIANS TRAIL

Canadian competitors in the giant slalom, over the tough course at Norefjell, were far down in placings. Bob Richardson of Montreal was 34th, Andre Bertrand of Quebec 36th and Jack Griffin of Vancouver 38th. Gordie Morrison of Banff, Alta., was farther back.

Eriksen was the 10th skier down the course. His time for the 2,300 metres—about a mile and a half—through twists and turns and the 66 control stations, was two minutes 25 seconds.

Two of Austria's top skiers, Christian Pravda and Tony Spiess, placed second and third respectively. Pravda was clocked in 2.26.9 and Spiess, pre-race favorite, in 2.28.8.

Zeno Colo of Italy, who as No. 1 broke the trail down the Norefjell hillside, was fourth in 2:29.1. Colo won the world giant slalom and downhill championships last year.

His time was equalled by Egon Schorf of Austria but Shorf was disqualified for failing to negotiate one of the gates properly.

30,000 ATTEND

Meanwhile, in Oslo, the official ceremonies opening the games were held in an impressive setting before 30,000 persons in Bislett Stadium, marked by a minute's silence in respect and memory of King George VI whose funeral procession moved through the streets of London at the same time.

Athletes of the 30 countries represented at the games except the skiers and bobsledders marched about the stadium and dipped their countries' flags when they passed the reviewing stand. Canada's delegation was led by George Audley, speed skater from Winnipeg, who carried the Canadian flag.

The flags of Norway, host country for the games, and all nations of the Commonwealth flew at half-staff atop the stands.

The spectators, who turned out in cold, crisp weather, watched Egil Nansen, grandson of a famous Norwegian explorer, ski into the stadium and light the torch that will burn until the games end Feb. 25.

The games were officially opened by Princess Ragnhild of Norway, daughter of Crown Prince Olaf, in London for the funeral with his father, the venerable King Haakon.

PROTEST CONDITION

Atop the bobsled run at Frognerseteren, outside Oslo, the bobsled men indulged in a round of beefing about the icy condition of the course and then got down to business.

For the second day the Germans, their country participating in the Olympics for the first time since 1936, made a show of the bobsled field.

Averaging around 50 miles an hour, the German flashed down the 1,500-metre course to take both of today's heats in 1.21.02 and 1.21.12. With their winning heats of yesterday, their time for the four heats—lowest total deciding the title—was 5.24.54.

The No. 1 sled of the United States, piloted by Stan Benham of Lake Placid, N.Y., finished second in 5.26.89.

Switzerland's No. 1 sled was third and the same country's No. 2 sled fourth. France was fifth and Belgium sixth.

Bays Confident Of Upsetting Pacesetters

J.B.A.A. of the Victoria Rugby Union will be out for blood when it takes the field against Crusaders at Macdonald Park today.

Crusaders, eight points in front of the Oarsmen, have been hit heavily by injuries the past few weeks and J.B.A.A. feel certain that it can conquer the pacesetters. With several new faces in the lineup the last few weeks, the Oarsmen have been steadily slicing the Knights' lead and a win today will cut the gap to a working margin.

The rejuvenated Oak Bay Wanderers will attempt to get back on the win van after absorbing a 14-12 loss to J.B.A.A. last week. Currently the hottest fifteen in the league, Wanderers will be trying to rise out of the cellar—a position they have clung to for most of the season—when they meet the unpredictable Victoria College Vikings at Windsor Park.

In second division play, Wanderers meet Victoria College at Macdonald Park. All games start at 2.30.

Games Canceled

Victoria Minor Hockey Association officials announced last night that the junior and midget games scheduled at Kerrisdale Arena on Monday have been canceled because of Mainland-Okanagan senior play-offs.

Junior division games to be played at Memorial Arena tomorrow pit Royals against Capitals at 8 a.m. and Senators against Maroons at 9.15 a.m.

Jackson Cup Entries Close

Entries for Jackson Cup soccer play close today.

Sam Smith, secretary to Pat Mulcahy, Vancouver Island representative of the B.C. Soccer Commission, issued a reminder last night that all teams must have their entries in today in order to be eligible to compete in the series.

City Title in First Year

Obstacles No Deterrent To Determined Hoopsters

By IAN GLENDAY

Scott & Wright, Victoria and District junior basketball champions, are the newest scourge to arise on the local hoopla scene.

Holders of the city crown, which they won from St. Louis College, they climax a highly successful casaba season at the Victoria High gym tonight when they meet Lake Cowichan junior boys in the second contest of the Lower Vancouver Island final. Scott & Wright hold a commanding 32-point lead by virtue of their first-game victory Tuesday night.

Most of the team members started their basketball activities in Oak Bay. Four of the players starred for Oak Bay United in the church league in 1949 and moved up to K.V. Tigers the following year. Upon reaching Oak Bay High School, seven members of the current squad combined their talents to lead Oak Bay to a second-place finish in Inter-High School Junior League play, one game behind the undefeated Mt. View quintet.

STAYED TOGETHER

So it was only natural that these boys get together and form a team in the city league. However all has not been rosy on the glory trail as numerous problems that always plague a first-year club have cropped into the situation.

First, they had to find a sponsor. Last August, they combed the city and thought they had a willing merchant, only to see the negotiations explode in their faces. Not at all dismayed by the unfortunate turn of events, the boys paid the $50 entrance fee out of their own pockets and found themselves at the start of the season minus a coach, sponsor, and equipment.

Their second problem of a coach was soon remedied when Dave Grey consented to take over the reigns of the club. Ollie Corbett, whose son Gary, frequently leads the team in scoring, acted as manager and things started to look up.

NONE BETTER

They used their own equipment and Oak Bay High School's sweaters. Now all they needed was a sponsor. This was where Scott & Wright stepped in and the boys emphatically agreed that a better sponsor could not be found.

They swept through the league undefeated, losing only a pair of exhibition games to intermediate clubs. And now they have their chance to add further laurels, if they can stop Lake Cowichan tonight.

Members of the team are:

David Paynter, Mike Partridge, Brian McCready, Murray Little, Merlin Hawes, Don Gillam, Hugh Creighton, Colin Creighton, Gary Corbett.

Growing Pains Over, Goal Problem Now Rocks' Biggest Worry

By TED REYNOLDS

Having survived a disconcerting but far from fatal bout of growing pains, Victoria Shamrocks now prepare to set out onto the still uncharted seas of a new season.

The metamorphosis from Cinderella-like newcomer to topdog, from unknown quantity to Canada's richest lacrosse team was bound to bring with it some difficulties. However, having cleared their own cupboard of skeletons, the Rocks stand every chance of emerging a better and more harmonious team.

If nothing else is definite, this is . . . no one from the coach down has a place on the 1952 club until he proves his right to it. That makes for a fighting team, it's an old adage that a hungry athlete is a good athlete.

With one glaring exception on the basis of last year's team that waltzed to the league pennant only to lose in a bitterly contested final, the Rocks are in good shape for the approaching job of work. The exception is the gaping hole in the goal left by the retirement of the "Fatman." Burly Bill Andrews' net protecting contortions are going to be missed.

Elsewhere, the team can start the 1952 season on solid ground. Returning to the fray will be defensemen Arnie Ferguson, Red McMillan, Len Scott and Norm Coates. Up front, the Shamrocks boast three of the league's greatest goal producers in Archie Browning, Whitey Severson and Larry Booth. Then there's Norm Baker, Tom Druce, the league's most rugged check; that old warrior Duff McCaghey; dogged Art Green; veteran Darryl Popham; 1950's rookie-of-the-year, Ed Popham, and at least five senior B stars fully capable of making it.

Three of the latter group, Norm Kowalyk, Johnny Newton and Jim Ranson, saw senior action and showed great possibilities last season.

STRONG DEFENSE

Taking them from the still empty net out, the Shamrock defense situation is one of the imponderables. Last year's most popular player, McMillan is probably the surest thing on the defense. However, playing this year with the added incentive of a game-by-game bonus and eager to live up to the full confidence expressed in him by the club, Arnie Ferguson could regain his spot as the team's "Mr. Big," the advancing years have not taken that great a toll on Fergy. Coates, with an injured foot apparently completely healed, should be a better player, and Len Scott, although he will have to improve, is still a potential defense stalwart.

SEEK WHIPPER

Wisely, the Shamrocks are ready to fill the shoes of any lagging defenseman who can't carry his full weight and the likeliest newcomer to this year's club is a man who can fill an awful big space . . . Harry (The Whip) Whipper, eastern speed-merchant who looked so impressive here with Peterborough last fall. Whipper, a McGill student, has shown a keen interest in wending his way west to play his lacrosse here this year.

Whipper is one of two oft-mentioned imports, the other is last season's Maitland Trophy winner, Jackie Northup, the long-time Adanac and Commando perpetual motion machine who has been contacted and, staying on the conservative side, is particularly interested in moving to this side of the Straits. Those two could, in themselves, add to the Shamrocks everything they were lacking last year.

No club could ask for a more potent forward combination than Whitey Severson, Archie Browning, Booth and Druce, and there's every reason to believe that all four will be ready to roll when comes opening game on May 6.

FOUR TO BE FILLED

That leaves four positions to be filled and having to fill them may be the Rocks' trump card this year. Baker, in condition and unhampered by injuries that plagued him last year, can star with any team. McCaghey, Green and Darryl Popham, though the latter's future is uncertain from a business point of view, are all to be reckoned with. A return to 1950 form by Ed Popham would assure him a place on the club and then there are the upcoming youngsters. Long-legged Johnny Newton impressed most last year of the rookie group brought up from senior B ranks.

So the goal question remains the greatest worry. Mentioned for the post are three of Canada's best. Freddy Fulla from Nanaimo and two eastern stars, Moon Wooten and Doug Flavelle. Wooten, the spark of last year's Mann Cup champion Peterborough Petes, is out . . . Flavelle has moved to St. Catherines, Ontario, which would seem to indicate he's decided to play his lacrosse there in 1952. That leaves Fulla.

NOT LIKELY

It's not likely that the Nanaimo star can be lured away from his hometown or that the Rocks would attempt to lure him down if it meant breaking up the Native Sons entry in the league.

So it could very easily be a local who fills the now Andrews-less nets, but who? Answer that one and fill the yawning gap in the Shamrock goal and you'll be King for a day.

Looking right down the line at this early date, things look remarkably bright for 1952's Shamrocks. Victoria fans have every reason to expect a frontrunner to hit the floor on May 6.

Individuals Ready To Meet Athletics In Opener Tonight

Climax to a season of financial setbacks, player injuries and official decisions will be reached by Victoria Individuals when they meet Alberni Athletics in the first game of a best-of-five series for the Island senior "A" men's basketball title at Victoria High gym tonight. Game time is 8.30 p.m.

It has been a hard season for the Cleaners, who were originally entered in the Inter-City Basketball League but dropped out when Norm Baker was refused permission to be a playing coach. Without Baker, Individuals lost fan support, although they always came up with a good exhibition against tough opposition and despite numerous injuries.

JOHN CLARK

Then Johnny Clark, a team in himself, suffered a knee injury at Alberni that put him on the sidelines for nearly three months. Porky Andrews and Vic Dale then decided to call it quits but the balance of the squad kept on, determined to bring Victoria another B.C. title and restore basketball to the stature it once held.

The Kinsmen Tournament was arranged to attempt to raise funds to see the club through the playoffs but that blew up over personalities and a misunderstanding, resulting in the suspension this week of manager Pat Horgan.

Still determined, the players rallied under coach Doug Peden for nightly practices with a new spirit that may count a lot in the playoff series. Adding heart was the announcement that Clark's knee has responded to treatment and he will be able to participate in the playoffs, although John Field will start at the pivot post tonight.

SPLIT TWO GAMES

The clubs have met twice this season, Individuals winning with Clark at Alberni, losing without him at Victoria.

Peden had a conservative views when asked for his predictions on the series last night. "Alberni is stronger on paper," he said, "but I think our spirit will pull us through if the boys play the basketball they are capable of displaying."

Mathieu Centre Of Disturbance In Maritimes

HALIFAX, Feb. 15 (CP)—Charlottetown Islanders are taking their case against Referee Gerald Mathieu and Sydney Millionaires to the Maritime Major Hockey League executive, President J. Elliott Hudson announced tonight.

Hudson said Islanders are protesting the action of the referee last night in awarding a rough-and-tumble Sydney-Charlottetown game to Millionaires before play finished. Mathieu said he took the action because Islanders "refused to play after being told to do so several times."

Sydney, last-place team, were leading 4-1 over second-place Islanders when play ended in the third period.

Huskies Near Hoopla Crown

MOSCOW, Idaho, Feb. 15 (AP)—Washington Huskies clinched at least a tie for the Northern Division basketball championship here tonight when Bob Houbregs and Frank Guisness led them to a 79-64 victory over Idaho.

The win put the Huskies three games ahead of the second-place Vandals with each team having three games left to play. Washington could cinch the title tonight in the last game of the series or with one win against Washington State in a two-game series at Seattle next week end.

"Y" Trio Rated Excellent Chance Of Gaining Olympic Swim Berths

By BRIAN O'CONNELL

Archie McKinnon, who is being considered for the coaching job of Canada's Olympic Games swimming team, feels that Victoria will be able to enter a team that should give a good account of itself in the Canadian trials if Peter Salmon, Doug Stewart and Eric Jubb decide to try out for the games.

The Victoria Y.M.C.A. coach announced that this trio is currently swimming for Jack Tornay's University of Washington team and none of them has given any indication that he will compete in the trials.

Whether Salmon tries out or not will have to be based on his plans for the summer. Money is the important factor, as he has to earn enough in his vacation to carry him through the next school term. He is at present studying medicine.

McKinnon is worried whether Salmon has been able to find time to train. The coach reported that if Pete could find time for about 20 minutes a day it would be all that he needs. McKinnon doesn't believe Salmon could get into condition in just a few weeks.

VERSATILE SWIMMER

"Salmon is an extremely versatile swimmer on the dashes," said McKinnon. "On a 100-yard course he can swim close to a 60-second breast stroke, a 51-second backstroke and a 52 free style. He won the American Intercollegiate 150-yard individual medley championship to become the first Canadian boy ever to win a title of that kind."

Representing Canada is nothing new for Pete who was a member of the 1948 Olympic team and the British Empire Games team. He won the British Empire Games' 100-metre free style event at New Zealand.

Jubb was a teammate of Salmon's in the '48 Olympics. At the present time he is competing in free style and individual medley events because the University team has an abundance of backstrokers.

REMARKABLE RHYTHM

"Eric holds most of the Canadian junior records and is another Salmon for all-round ability," according to McKinnon. "He can swim each of the three strokes with remarkable rhythm."

In referring to Stewart, McKinnon reported, "He is an excellent 100-yard man but will have to train hard to condition himself for the Olympics where the distances are 200 metres. He holds most of the Canadian junior breaststroke records."

Jim Portelance, formerly of Ocean Falls, and another member of the Washington team, has announced that he would like to swim for the "Y" if he can find summer employment here. He was a member of Canada's B.E. team with Salmon and took second in the 1,500-yard freestyle event.

Portelance is reported not in the best of shape as yet because he is swimming in the longer freestyle events.

OUTSIDE CHANCE

"Stan Powell and Robin Clarke are another pair of local youngsters who have considerable ability in the freestyle events," said McKinnon, "but they need a lot of time and work to reach the calibre of Salmon."

Powell is confining himself to the middle distances, particularly the 400 and 1,500 metres, while Clarke is concentrating on the dashes.

"I have many more good prospects but they will not be ready this time, maybe by the next British Empires Games in Vancouver or by the 1956 Olympics."

Norma Stewart will be giving other women contestants a good fight for a team berth. She holds practically all the Canadian junior breaststroke records and several senior marks.

NEEDS STRENGTH

"She is an almost technically perfect butterfly artist, and all she needs is more strength and staying power to make the 200-metre distance," said McKinnon.

Mrs. Bill Parnell (nee Joan Morgan) is now residing in Pullman, Wash., and her plans for the trials are not known. But it has been heard indirectly that she is working hard getting ready for the trials. Joan was a member of Canada's last B.E. team and won the Canadian backstroke title at Vancouver last year.

There is somewhat of a mystery surrounding Irene Strong and her swimming intentions, according to McKinnon. He said that she was reported to be working as a dentist's assistant in Vancouver. Her plans as to the Olympics are also not known, but she would be a strong addition to any team.

Swimmers who will be giving the Victorians a hard battle for positions, says the Y.M.C.A. coach, are Lucien Beaumont and Pete Mingie of Montreal, Kay and Gerry McNamee of Vancouver, and Ocean Falls' Jim Portelance.

Nanaimo Game Body Asks Deer Season Extension

NANAIMO, Feb. 15.—At its annual meeting held here Thursday, the Nanaimo Fish and Game Protective Association decided to recommend to the meeting of affiliated Vancouver Island fish and game clubs at Nanaimo Feb. 24, that the 1952 deer season be extended.

The recommended dates, the same as those to be asked by Alberni delegates, are from Sept. 27 to Nov. 16, an extension of two weeks. The present limit of two bucks, one in possession, met with the approval of the meeting.

An open season on bear and a closed season for elk also found no objections.

However, members decided to request an earlier opening for the duck season with the recommendation of a season extending from Oct. 18 to Dec. 21. This is earlier than last year by a month and had the support of game biologist D. J. Robinson, who said that better advantage of migrating birds could be taken earlier and that ducks are less fishy.

IMPROVE HUNTING

It was suggested by one member that action be taken to regulate evening shooting of ducks at feeding time to certain days of the week. It was his belief that this would improve hunting and keep the ducks in the better shooting areas longer.

Other recommendations set the season for snipe the same as the recommended season for ducks, no change in the present season on band-tailed pigeons and grouse, and a brant season extending from Dec. 20 to Feb. 29.

MARSHALL PRESIDENT

Fred Marshall was the unanimous choice of the members to remain as club president. Art Coburn is vice-president and Jack Bateman was named secretary-treasurer to succeed Harry Hackwood. Jack Cottle, 73, a veteran sportsman who has hunted on Vancouver Island for more than 50 years, was given a life membership and named honorary president.

Committee chairmen were named as follows: Deer, Bill Spowart; fish, Ed Carrol; upland game birds, Cottle; predators, Jack Barsby; migratory birds, Hackwood.

The club decided to ask the game department if free fishing permits can be issued to members of the White Cane Club by game wardens. Warden Frank Greenfield said he felt certain it would be done.

FAVOR INCREASE

It was also the feeling of members present that the fees for non-resident aliens should also be increased following the increase in resident and Canadian non-resident fishing and firearms licenses.

Committee reports showed deer seen plentifully, and in good condition, brant hunting picking up, little river fishing due to high water, pheasants healthy, and good success in getting rid of wolves in the Northwest Bay area by James Dewar, predatory hunter.

Ladysmith Body Suggests Earlier Season on Geese

LADYSMITH, Feb. 15. — The Ladysmith Fish and Game Association had little fault to find with the 1951 game regulations at a meeting here earlier this week and will recommended only one important change.

The club instructed delegates Ron Bowen, Don McKay and Tom Stratton to press for an earlier opening of the season on geese at the annual meeting of the Vancouver Island Affiliated Fish and Game Association at Nanaimo on Sunday, Feb. 24.

It was the unanimous opinion of members present that a November opening is too late and it was decided to recommend a season for geese starting Saturday, Oct. 11 and ending Sunday, Dec. 11. It was brought out at the meeting that in their regular flight south last year, geese landed in noticeably-large numbers in this area about Oct. 20.

It was felt that the 1951 seasons on snow geese, brant and ducks should be retained for this year.

ELK SURVEYS

There was no quarrel either with the 1951 deer season and the club recommended a two-buck limit for a season extending from Sept. 13 to Nov. 16. A closed season on elk was also recommended but it was passed as a suggestion that the game department be asked to advise game clubs of the number of elk in areas after close surveys. An open season on bear was also recommended.

Aug. 17 was the tentative date selected for the annual club coho derby and members were reminded that the Neville Trophy for steelhead is now up for competition. Dick Luoma reportedly was leading with a 14¾-pounder caught in the Nanaimo River. Lack of a membership card by a fisherman disqualified a 17-pounder.

Golf--- Here's How

By SAM SNEAD

Golf's Greatest Player-Teacher

This player has swung well at a ball which was lying on a flat spot in a sand trap. He didn't try to explode this shot from the sand. Rather he clipped it in a clean, crisp, easy swing. Technically, he would have made the shot in a bit better form had he wiggled his feet around in the sand a little and anchored them in the hard sand rather than on the surface sand. Otherwise he has swung well and as his clubhead passed through and after the ball his weight smoothly shifted to his left leg and his shoulders are pivoting nicely for a shot of this type. And don't fail to notice that he is keeping his club moving in a full and complete follow-through. He didn't let the clubhead die in the sand and he did not quit at impact which is the reason why many high handicap golfers are high handicap golfers. Never let the fact that a wall looms in front worry you when you're shooting from a sand trap. The loft of the clubface is designed to arc the ball up and over. Swing confidently, smoothly and finish the swing.

Confused by Royalty

NOREFJELL, Norway, Feb. 15 (AP).—Princess Ragnhild of Norway obediently accepted a request from a Swedish photographer today to pose with members of the Swedish team in the Winter Olympic games.

"I was so confused," said Sixten Isberg, a team member, "that I asked the Princess if she spoke Norwegian."

Ill-Treatment Charge Dismissed

OTTAWA, Feb. 15 (CP)—Magistrate Glenn Strike Thursday dismissed a charge against Wilf (Pit) Lepine of Quebec, winner yesterday of the International Dog Derby, of ill-treating one of his dogs by racing it with sore paws.

The charge was made by the Ottawa Humane Society, whose manager, Kenneth Switzer, and an official, Inspector W. J. Miles, testified that the pads on the rear feet of one of Lepine's cross-bred hounds were oozing blood after the race yesterday.

Inspector H. A. Larsen, who commands the R.C.M.P.'s Northwest Territories division and was one of the judges in the race, testified that he did not consider the dog's injuries serious.

He said the dog's pads were "worn a bit," but "that sort of thing happens all the time and is pretty hard to avoid." It happened in all races and in "our own service."

The elephant has the longest life span among mammals, often living to more than 100 years of age.

P.C.H.L. Scoring Statistics Show 31 With 20 Goals

A 20-goal season once was comparable to a .300 year in baseball but 20-goal men will be so numerous in the P.C.H.L. this season that it won't even be a good bargaining point at contract time.

Complete team statistics show that with almost one-quarter of the season left, 31 players have already managed to score 20 or more goals and that another 12 are reasonably certain to make it.

This means that over half of the forwards may be 20-goal men this season, which no longer would put any of them in an exclusive group.

In fact, even 30-goal men won't be too scarce. Five players have already reached that figure, as many as 14 others have an excellent chance. Hockey certainly has changed when as many as 25 per cent of the forwards in a league can score 30 goals and over 50 per cent can make it 20.

ROCKETS HAVE SIX

Tacoma Rockets have six 20-goal men and two other forwards who have 18 for the best-balanced forward group in the league. Their other two attackers have 12 and 11 goals. Saskatoon and Seattle each have five 20-goal men. New Westminster and Calgary have four, Edmonton three and Vancouver and Victoria two.

Calgary's George Agar holds a five-point lead 71-66 over Ed Dorohoy, Victoria's defending champion, in the individual scoring race but has played in five more games and Dorohoy has three games in hand. Three other players have more than 60 points and 12 others are over 50.

New Westminster's Lucien Dechene, who has allowed only 2.64 goals per game, seems a cinch to retain his netminding honors. Eight of the 14 goalies who have seen action this season have failed to hold opposing teams to less than four goals a game.

PENALTY BATTLE

Penalty-wise, four players are arguing over the dubious honor of leading the league. Calgary's Bill Shvetz has passed Norm Gustavson's total of 121 minutes by seven minutes with Gustavson out of the league for several weeks and unable to defend the laurels he won last season with 171 minutes. Tacoma's Buck Jones (110) and Edmonton's Bill Pettinger (106) and Doug McCaig (105) are in no apparent mood to let Shvetz win too easily.

An unofficial check shows that 175 players, including goalies, have seen action in the P.C.H.L. this season. Vancouver Canucks lead the way with a record-breaking 38, including Bob Ballance, now with Victoria.

Betting Service Declared Illegal

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15 (AP).—Attorney-General Edmund G. Brown has declared that the "messenger" system of placing horse race bets is illegal.

His opinion was prompted by the activities of a new organization known as the South California Messenger Service, which advertises it delivers "sealed messages" to race tracks for a 10-per-cent fee.

The Glendale messenger service has been operating for four days under the auspices of George Seman.

1179 TATTERSALL DRIVE

Certain low castes in India and a few tribes in Africa still practice the strange ritual of marrying trees as an integral part of the marriage service. The nuptial pair are tied to trees with thread, and an elaborate ceremony is then held around the couple. Reason for the strange rite is the natives' belief that souls about to be born live in trees. Therefore, marriage to a tree supposedly assures the prospective bride and bridegroom of fertility and the continuity of their line. In addition, tree marriages serve the useful purpose of establishing a new social status for widows, widowers, and unmarried girls. For instance, a bachelor who wants to marry a widow, must first marry a tree, which is then cut down. The "killing" of the tree automatically makes him a widower, thus placing him in an equal status with his human bride! The rite is convenient for spinsters, too. To change her status to a married woman, a girl has simply to go out and find herself a likely tree!

St. Laurent Attends Memorial Mass

OTTAWA, Feb. 15 (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent attended a solemn high mass for the King today at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church. Members of the diplomatic corps also attended the service at the invitation of Rev. Paul Monahan, parish priest.

Victoria Undertakers Reply

Funeral Gouge Stories Called "Stupid Smears"

Stories that Detroit morticians are pyramiding funeral charges were labeled part of "a stupid smear campaign" by funeral directors in Victoria yesterday.

The International News Service story from Washington, D.C., said the U.S. Federal Trade Commission had been asked yesterday to conduct "a public probe of unethical practices in the undertaking business."

The inquiry was requested by the Co-operative League of America, a consumers' organization, which said it had uncovered "a number of sharp dodges in the burial industry."

League secretary Jerry Voorhis was quoted as saying the Detroit morticians arrived at the cost of a funeral by multiplying the cost of the casket by 3.8 "regardless of the fact that the actual funeral services provided were the same in each case."

SIMPLE ADDITION

Directors here said that prices of funerals in Victoria were arrived at by adding the cost of the services to the cost of the casket "with no multiplication." They said the cost of the casket was the main factor in differences of total undertakers' bills.

The story about Detroit morticians looked unjustified, they said. One funeral director here quoted a morticians' publication in the U.S. which gave the proportion of funerals in Michigan costing more than $1,000 as only .8 per cent.

The figures, he pointed out, included the city of Detroit, where funeral charges are under fire from the league.

Four Killed After Driver Falls Asleep

AILSA CRAIG, Ont., Feb. 15 (CP).—An automobile, whose driver apparently fell asleep at the wheel, rammed into a tree near here today, killing four passengers. Three others were injured.

Ed Hunniford, 30, of Thedford, Ont., the driver, and three soldiers from Camp Ipperwash lost their lives. The three other occupants, all soldiers, were injured; two severely.

Names of the soldiers, members of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, were withheld pending notification of next of kin. It is believed some came from western Canada.

Al Bridget, owner of a garage in this town 20 miles northwest of London, was called to help remove the dead and injured from the car.

Bridget said "We had to pry the car apart to get at the victims. When we got there there were two dead soldiers in the front seat. Another was lying across the back of the front seat. He was dreadfully injured and died while we were getting him out."

Bridget said the fact that there was no snow or ice on the road and signs from the tire marks that the car gradually left the highway indicated that the driver fell asleep.

Police said the soldiers met Hunniford in a Thedford restaurant Thursday night, went to London with him and were returning to the camp when the accident occurred. The camp is 50 miles northwest of London.

Two Tenders Back in Port After Gulf Jobs

The transport department lighthouse tenders Estevan and Berens are both back in port following operations in the Gulf of Georgia.

Estevan, commanded by Capt. Harry Ormiston, docked Wednesday evening, and Berens, commanded by Capt. Joseph Peterson, returned yesterday morning.

Meanwhile, the department's weathership Stonetown is scheduled to leave her berth for Station Peter on Feb. 28. She will relieve her sister ship, the St. Catharines.

Stonetown was in international news recently when she led the search for the American freighter Pennsylvania, lost several hundred miles off the northern tip of Vancouver Island. The weathership suffered considerable storm damage during the search.

U.S. Forces May Depend On Rockets

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Feb. 15 (AP).—Guided missiles may become the chief support of United States' military forces.

This was the message today by Brig.-Gen. L. E. Simon, chief of the research and development division of ordnance, in a speech at the Redstone Arsenal, the army's new centre for rockets and guided missiles.

He spoke at the dedication of a $1,000,000 laboratory to discover new kinds of explosives to drive rockets and missiles.

This is one of four laboratories on the 40,000-acre area where, in the last two years, the army has established this new branch of military service. One of the other laboratories also works on new explosives, and the others are one for rockets and one for guided missiles.

Little has been said previously about this new arsenal for rockets. It is starting with hundreds of scientists and a total force of 6,000 persons.

Bank Bandits Get $9,000

ST. MARY'S, Pa., Feb. 15 (AP).—Two gunmen wearing masks robbed the Johnsonburg National Bank at nearby Johnsonburg today and escaped with an estimated $9,000 in cash. Police said the bandits apparently entered the bank by breaking a rear window Thursday night and hid in the furnace room until janitress Mrs. Cecelia Bush came in.

Sudan Rule By Farouk Considered

LONDON, Feb. 15 (AP).—Diplomatic officials disclosed privately today that Britain is considering recognizing Egypt's King Farouk I as regent or king of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Such status would last only until the Sudanese people get a chance to settle their own future, they said.

The 1,000,000-square mile Sudan, adjoining Egypt on the south, and the Suez Canal zone in the north, are the great issues in the now-quiet dispute between Egypt and Britain.

The informants, who declined to be identified by name, emphasized that so far the plan has not been submitted to either Egypt or to Sudanese leaders. Both may be sounded out in the next week or two if Britain decides to go through with the plan, the sources said.

Informed sources said Britain now has nearly 100,000 men in the disputed Suez Canal Zone.

Observers were quick to note that the Anglo-Egyptian dispute over the canal zone remains the big immediate problem dividing the two countries. If the Sudanese should agree to Farouk as king or these observers emphasized, Britain would be giving away little and yet would be pleasing most nationalist-minded Egyptians.

Ever since Egypt denounced her 1936 defense treaty with Britain last mid-October and proclaimed Farouk king of the Sudan, London has re-emphasized that the 8,000,000 or 9,000,000 Sudanese themselves must decide their political future.

Three Firms Incorporated During Week

Three companies with offices in Victoria were incorporated at the Legislative Buildings during the last week, and one extra-provincial company was registered.

Incorporations were Capital Enterprises Ltd., $10,000, 904 Government Street; The B-B Sawmills, $10,000, 1324 Government Street, and T. Lambie & Son Ltd., $125,000, 2620 Rock Bay Avenue.

The Hy-Charger Petroleums Ltd. (N.P.L.), $4,000,000, of Toronto, was registered with an office at 625 Fort Street.

Private Investigators End Hunt for Shark

PANAMA CITY, Panama, Feb. 15 (CP).—Private investigators have ended their search for a man-eating shark which might have yielded clues to the Jan. 15 disappearance of Gosta Videgaard, wealthy Swedish engineer. The investigators hunted unsuccessfully for a shark whose stomach might contain a trace of the missing man. They are almost satisfied he drowned but do not completely rule out the possibility of foul play.

Annual reunion of the 51st Edmonton Battalion will be held in Britannia Legion Hall on Saturday at 8 p.m.

Chinese in Moscow Mark Friendship Pact

MOSCOW, Feb. 15 (AP).—Five hundred guests including top-ranking Russian government figures, attended a Communist Chinese Embassy reception at the Metropole Hotel last night. It was celebrating the second anniversary of the Soviet-Chinese treaty of friendship.

Arts Centre Hears Talk By Actor

An unusual lecture which included acting of a stage and a radio script was given by Ian Thorne, actor-writer, at the Victoria Arts Centre recently.

Victoria Theatre Guild actors assisted Mr. Thorne in presenting two versions, one right and one wrong, of playwrighting methods.

Mr. Thorne skelched for his audience many of the technical problems facing dramatists, and the actors illustrated his points.

Assisting were Bruce Banyard, Rikki Nickells, Olive Keane, John Keane and others, demonstrating versions of a stage play and, by use of a microphone behind closed doors, also acting a radio version.

Cunard Liner Trying Out Anti-Roll Fins

When the 13,345-ton Cunard liner Media leaves England for New York at the end of this month she will be the first trans-Atlantic liner fitted with "anti-roll fins."

The ship is now at a Clyde shipyard where the fins—known as Denny Brown stabilizers—are being fitted into her hull. Developed by two Scottish firms, the new devices have proved themselves to be of great value in improving the stability of vessels on the high seas.

The fins enable a ship to maintain greater speeds in heavy seas, in addition to providing considerable savings in such items as dishware and furnishings.

The fins extend about 12 feet from the ship's side and are operated by gyroscopes.

The British Admiralty showed the first real interest in the development of the stabilizers and more than 100 warships of the last war were fitted with them.

With her roll reduced, a warship has a steadier gun platform and more accurate shooting results.

Victoria Fisherman Allowed Permit To Use Danish-Type Herring Trawl

A license for the operation of a Danish-type floating trawl net has been issued by the federal fisheries department to a Victoria fisherman.

This type of gear, quite common in North Atlantic fisheries, is currently on trial in the Pacific area, and this season's operations—in the herring field—will be closely watched by an observer from the Pacific Biological Station who will be aboard to witness the fishing operation.

The Danish trawl is towed by two vessels. They may operate as far apart as 300 feet.

Instead of being dragged along the floor of the sea, as is the case with an ordinary trawl, the Danish-type net is set at any depth in which fish may be swimming.

The net consists of four lead wings and the usual cod ends, and a bridle line from the outer wings leading to the towing vessels. A cork line keeps the top of the net buoyant. Heavy iron weights are carried on the bridle lines, and adjustment of these permits changes in the depth at which the net is operated.

Island Man Opens Planning Service

A former provincial government regional planning director and Nanaimo city engineer has opened an office at Vancouver.

Culbertson on Bridge - - -

This week's column is being devoted to the analysis of hands from the recent international match in Naples, Italy. An American team defeated the European champions, and Italian team. The Americans were Howard Schenken, B. J. Becker, Samuel M. Stayman, George Rapee, all of New York, and John Crawford of Philadelphia.

The following hand gave the American team an advantage of 750 points:

West, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ J 9
♥ A 9 5 3
♦ K Q J
♣ A J 10 7

WEST
♠ 4 3
♥ K 8 2
♦ 8 5
♣ K Q 9 8 5 2

EAST
♠ 8 7 6 2
♥ J 7 6 4
♦ 10 9 7
♣ 4 3

SOUTH
♠ A K Q 10 5
♥ Q 10
♦ A 6 4 3 2
♣ 6

When the Italians held the North-South cards, they reached only six diamonds, making seven.

The American bidding was more aggresive, namely:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	1 NT	Pass	3 ♦
Pass	4 ♦	Pass	5 ♠
Pass	6 ♠	Pass	6 ♦
Pass	7 ♦	Pass	Pass
Pass

Schenken was South, Stayman was North.

The opening lead by West was the king of clubs, and although Schenken fulfilled the contract, it is extremely questionable that he played the hand correctly. He drew trumps and cashed his spades, and since, fortunately for him, West held the king of hearts along with the high club, an automatic squeeze developed. When Schenken was down to the Q-10 of hearts, West had to choose between throwing away the high club and blanking the heart king.

It would seem the correct way to play this hand at seven diamonds is to win the club opening and immediately to ruff a club. Now declarer can actually test the trump break by leading two rounds, and when both opponents follow, the rest is routine. South should ruff another club, lead a spade to dummy, and ruff the last club with the trump ace. Now he simply has to return to the board with a heart, draw the last outstanding trump while discarding his own heart queen, and claim the balance with spades.

Uncle Wiggily Story - - -

By Howard Garis

YOUNG BOBBIE'S VALENTINE

"My claws hurt."

Uncle Wiggily and Mr. Butter, shut up inside the snow house, were very much surprised when they heard voices outside. The goat was stuck by his horns in one of the snow walls, Uncle Wiggily was trying to dig a way out with his paws. Then the two snow prisoners heard Old Bobbie the bob cat say to his son:

"Come on now, Young Bobbie! Start digging! We must rescue Uncle Wiggily."

"Did you hear that, Pat?" asked Mr. Longears.

"I sure did," bleated the goat. "But I don't think much of it."

"Why not?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "We are going to be rescued, aren't we, Pat?"

"Yes, but we may be rescued for a far, far worse fate," said the goat. "I got that out of a book, Wiggy. What I mean is that the bob cats may dig us out but after that they may take us to their dens."

"Oh, no, they wouldn't do that," said Uncle Wiggily. "Old Bobbie is a friend of mine. He used to be an enemy but now he is a friend."

"What about Young Bobbie? Is he a friend, Wiggy?"

"Well, Pat, I woudn't exactly say he was. Certainly it wasn't very friendly of him to play a trick on us and roll a big snowball against this snow house. But wait! Listen!"

The two prisoners heard Young Bobbie say:

"This is awful hard snow to dig, daddy. Do I have to do it? My claws hurt."

"Well, Young Bobbie, it serves you right. That is part of your punishment for shutting Uncle Wiggily and Mr. Butter up in the snow house. Now keep on digging as I am doing."

"Did you hear that, Pat?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Yes, I did. I guess we will be all right. Well, they can't dig us out any too soon. I am catching cold in my horns with them stuck in a snow wall as they are. But they are coming closer. I can hear the digging sounds very plain now."

"Yes, we shall soon be rescued," said Uncle Wiggily.

A little later, after much clawing and scratching by Old Bobbie and Young Bobbie, the snowball was dug away from the front doorway and the elder bob cat said:

"You may come out now, gentleman. The doorway is open. And I wish to tell you that my son, Young Bobbie, is very sorry for what he did. You are sorry, aren't you, Young Bobbie?"

"Yes, daddy, I guess so. But it was a good trick, wasn't it?"

"It may have been a funny trick for you, but it was no fun for us," said Uncle Wiggily. "Come on, Pat, let's go!"

"Go, Wiggy! I can't go yet! My horns are still stuck in the snow."

"Oh, excuse me," said Old Bobbie. "I'll claw your horns loose."

And when this was done, very carefully so as not to scratch the goat, he and Uncle Wiggily walked out of the snow house.

"Tell Uncle Wiggily and Mr. Butter you are sorry, Young Bobbie," said his father. "And that you will never do it again."

Young Bobbie scraped his paws in the snow and said, in a very low voice:

"I am sorry and will never do it again."

"We will forgive you," spoke Uncle Wiggily kindly. Then he went to his hollow stump bungalow. Mr. Pat Butter scurried to his grocery to sell Swiss cheese, full of holes, and Old Bobbie and Young Bobbie went to their den. There, that evening Old Bobbie said:

"Young Bobbie, I think you should do some kind deed for Uncle Wiggily to show him how sorry you are."

"What do you want me to do, daddy?"

"I want you to take Uncle Wiggily a valentine. Will you do that?"

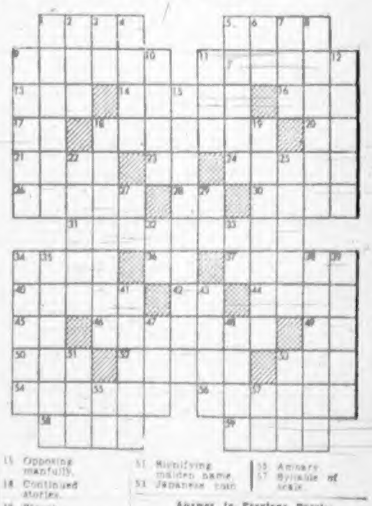

"Yes, daddy, I will," said Young Bobbie. There was a funny twinkle in his eyes.

I will tell you more about Young Bobbie's valentine tomorrow, if the coal shovel doesn't put snow in one of the rubber boots so that the foot of the stairs catches cold.

Strong Bus Fare Debate Due at Saanich Council

A strong debate is expected to develop Monday at Saanich council over the proposed higher bus fares of the B.C. Electric Co.

In past matters dealing with proposals of the company towards higher consumer costs, at least two councillors have spoken sharply against increases and cited bus operations as being subsidized by the light and power operations.

Reeve Joseph Casey already has indicated he is willing to let the Public Utilities Commission deal with the company application, providing the municipality has representation at any hearing.

Esquimalt council Thursday evening voted in favor of the P.U.C. calling a public hearing and against the proposed new rates.

Pilot Dies at Controls; Passenger Lands Plane

CANDO, N.D., Feb. 15 (AP)— The pilot of a light plane slumped over the control stick and died of a heart attack Thursday but the ship was landed safetly by a passenger who knew how to fly. Boss Case, 50, collapsed when the ship was about 50 feet off the ground. Ansel Christopherson took over in time to avert a crash and brought the plane back to the local airport.

Cancer Campaign Seeks $250,000

A drive for $250,000 will be launched in British Columbia in April by the Conquer Cancer Campaign.

This year the B.C. Division, Canadian Cancer Society, has joined with the B.C. Cancer Foundation in an appeal for $250,000. $150,000 to enable the society to maintain its program of education, research and welfare, and $100,000 to help the foundation provide improved treatment facilities.

A new building costing approximately $700,000 is at present under construction at the B.C. Cancer Institute in Vancouver, and the foundation needs $100,000 to finish it.

The new building, which will be opened later this year, is being equipped with a Cobalt 60 "bomb," one of the most modern methods of treating cancer. B.C. is the third province in Canada to make Cobalt 60 available for treatment purposes.

Hubert A. Wallace, vice-president of Yarrows, Victoria, is this year's provincial campaign chairman. John Hart is chairman of the Victoria campaign committee, and R. L. Patton is treasurer.

Hearing to Resume Monday on Charge Against London Times in Election Case

LONDON, Feb. 15 (Reuters)— A hearing will resume Monday in the Old Bailey court in which The Times of London is one of three defendants charged with corrupt practices in the British election campaign last October.

Prosecutor Christmas Humphreys told the court Thursday that the case had been brought only as a test. The charge grew out of the publication last Oct. 19—six days before the election—of an advertisement attacking the Labor government.

British law prohibits "the incurring by any person of expense with a view to promoting or procuring the election of a candidate at an election unless that expense was authorized in writing by the election agent of the candidate."

Humphries said there was no allegation whatever against the honor of The Times Publishing Company, Tronoh Mines Limited of London, or Harold Edgar Barrenger, secretary of Tronoh Mines which inserted the ad.

All three defendants pleaded not guilty.

All the newspapers which printed the ad aided and abetted the alleged offense and the prosecution had chosen The Times as a representative paper, Humphreys said.

He said it was a test case to obtain the judicial ruling on the proper meaning of the section concerned.

All But 58 Claimants Reply

CLEVELAND, Feb. 15 (AP)— All but 58 of the 577 claimants in the Noronic ship disaster had filed their answers by the deadline today to a $2,150,000 settlement offer by Canada Steamship Lines Ltd.

Federal Court Clerk C. B. Watkins said only 12 of the 519 answers rejected the offer. Individual claims filed by the 12 total about $350,000.

Now Judge Paul Jones will rule on whether he considers the offer fair.
